SAYS FEW PEOPLE REALIZE VALUE IRRIGATION WORK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—(AP)—"The United States realize what the government irrigation work already has done for this country," W. H. Heileman said today. He is here consulting reclamation service officials in regard to some of the irrigation problems with which he is dealing in the west.

"Although irrigation is practically a new thing in the west," he added, "most of the sugar beets and citrus fruits, nearly all the cotton and dried fruit products in the country and an important part of the apple crop are raised on the newly irrigated lands. Until recently the practice of irrigation was considered economically possible only for high-class products with a high market value per acre, such as fruits, but we are learning that it is possible also to make general farming pay satisfactorily returns under irrigation."

WOULD IGNORE PROTEST

The first stir over the announcement that Russia had become aroused over the proposed action to an American congress in cutting off all commercial and treaty relations with that country, and that international complications might ensue, soon was followed by another thrill when six members of the cabinet were summoned to the White House late in the afternoon. Officially it was stated that the cabinet had been called in council to pass finally upon President Taft's message on departmental affairs to go to congress next Thursday. The meeting lasted more than three hours.

Try to Minimize Importance.

Throughout the day an effort was made in official quarters to minimize the importance of the Russian ambassador's action.

"Russia has made no formal protest against the abrogation of the treaty or against the Sulzer resolution," Secretary of State Knox said. "The Russian ambassador refused to discuss the matter, but eagerly sought information as to the probable attitude of the senate."

President Taft today sent for several of the senate leaders and placed the matter before them. He is said to have urged that the resolution of abrogation be modified. The president, it was said, had not given up hope that the negotiations undertaken some time ago with the St. Petersburg government would meet with success. The demand for immediate action by congress has become so insistent, however, that he would not attempt to check it.

Senators and members of the house, apprised of what many of them characterized as a veiled threat by Russia to cut off all friendly relations with the United States, discussed the matter freely.

Republican leaders in the house were inclined to criticize the Democrats for having required the adoption of the Sulzer resolution. They had endeavored, they said, to have the resolution amended. When that effort failed, they voted for its original terms and the resolution was carried, 300 to 1, the only negative vote being cast by Representative Vane of New York a Republican.

Democrats Defend Action.

The Democrats were quick to defend their action and Chairman Sulzer tonight issued a statement in which he declared that everything recited in the resolution was true and

A BOTANY CONTEST

A botany contest was held by the Boy Scouts in Pensacola, Florida. Twenty of them started out on a signal from a whistle to search through the weeds and find as many specimens of wild flowers as possible within a given time. There was much scrambling and fast work on the part of the boys, and presently they all returned with their hands full of various colored blooms. After the blooms had been counted, Fred Sims was declared the winner, having found 24 different flowers. Adrian Thompson was second with 13 specimens.

A BOTANY CONTEST

A botany contest was held by the Boy Scouts in Pensacola, Florida. Twenty of them started out on a signal from a whistle to search through the weeds and find as many specimens of wild flowers as possible within a given time. There was much scrambling and fast work on the part of the boys, and presently they all returned with their hands full of various colored blooms. After the blooms had been counted, Fred Sims was declared the winner, having found 24 different flowers. Adrian Thompson was second with 13 specimens.

Philippine hardwoods are to be used in constructing the tomb of the late Emperor of China. For the millers giant trees will be taken from the Mirandina forests, some of them already cut being 50 feet high and four feet in diameter.

Turkey breeders who have been troubled by their charges straying are recommended by the London Agricultural Gazette to put a net on a few of the leaders, old hens by preference.

Inquire Into Big Fund for Organization

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 16.—The fund paid monthly to John J. McNamara as secretary of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, for organization purposes, and for which he was not required to give an accounting, was inquired into today by the government officials conducting the dynamite investigation before the federal grand jury. The relation of the fund to the fee given Orville McNamagal, the confessed dynamiter, for his work in blowing up structures erected by non-union workmen, also was traced.

From an employee of a livery concern at Muncie, Ind., the investigators learned of McNamagal's movement of nitroglycerin from Albany, Ind., to a storehouse at Muncie. McNamagal, under the name of J. W. McGraw, bought 100 quarts of the explosive near Albany.

It was delivered to him in a wagon outside the city, driven by him to an empty house at Muncie, and there packed in sawdust.

He confessed he afterwards used some of the nitroglycerin for explosions at Peoria, Ill.

The similarity of some of the sawdust found at Peoria to that found at Muncie and in the wagon, led to the linking up of the evidence by the detectives, and the transactions were gone over to ascertain what money had been paid for expenses.

Double Explosions Plan

Another point taken up was the purpose by McNamara, according to McNamagal, to employ more men to have explosions occur on the same day at about the same hour at cities widely separated.

J. A. G. Badort, a detective, employed by the National Erectors association, who worked on this phase of the case, and who secured scores of photographs of wrecked structures, was before the grand jury for several hours.

According to McNamagal, J. J. McNamara had explosions occur at Omaha, Neb., and at Columbus, Ind., on the same night. It was in this connection that McNamagal was charged by McNamara with having said "I was going to go out about the same time so they will wonder how the fellow was in Omaha and Columbus the same night. What I am going to do is to get about six or eight good fellows and I am going to station them around the country and have explosions come off at one time, one right after the other. I will make them sit up and take notice."

Used Telegrams in Code

It has been shown that in the Omaha-Columbus incident, on March 24, 1911, the explosions were done by McNamagal and J. B. McNamara, the time being arranged by telegrams in code sent to J. J. McNamara in Indianapolis. Reports have reached Indianapolis of the intention of state authorities to start prosecutions for explosions which have occurred in their localities and asking whether their evidence, now in the hands of the government, might be available for county grand jury investigations.

"It is the duty of different jurisdictions to seize each other in prosecuting offenders," said Assistant District Attorney Clarence E. Nichols.

"County prosecutors in any state will not have any difficulty in obtaining from the federal authorities any evidence desired in discovering persons who may have been implicated locally, but the evidence will be held by the federal courts until all proceedings in this and other districts have been completed."

Former Secretary Appears

Miss Nora Haley, former private secretary of John J. McNamara, who was under federal surveillance at her home in Chicago for several days, spent more than an hour before the grand jury this afternoon.

Little is known of the nature of her testimony but as the government is known to be delving into the correspondence of the ex-secretary of the iron workers, it is supposed she was questioned regarding money spent during the period when numerous explosions occurred.

Before entering the grand jury room Miss Haley was cited with District Attorney Miller for nearly an hour.

Arthur Meyer, formerly a bookkeeper in the iron workers office, but now employed by the Westinghouse company at Pittsburg, also testified today.

Served With Subpoenas

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 16.—Olaf Tveitmo, secretary of the State Building Trades council, and Antonio Johansen, an organizer for that organization, arrived in San Francisco today from the east. Both were served with subpoenas to appear before the federal grand jury in Chicago.

Tveitmo said he had business affairs here for two or three days and that then he would go to the southern city.

CHINA TO GET INDEMNITY FROM MEXICO BY JULY 1912

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 16.—"On or before July 1, 1912," is the time fixed for the payment to China of the $200,000,000 indemnity for subjects of that country massacred in Torreon during the recent revolution.

The protocol recording the agreement to the amount and the time of payment formally was signed here this afternoon by the representatives of both governments.—This amount is by far the largest claim growing out of the revolution and to meet it Mexico will, it is understood, float a loan some time in April.

DICTAPHONE PLAYS PART IN TRIAL FOR BRIBERY

CROWN POINT, Ind., Dec. 16.—The dictaphone and its operators occupied much of the attention of the circuit court here today at the trial of Aldermen Walter Gibson of Gary on charges of bribery, growing out of the passage of a heating franchise ordinance by the Gary common council. T. B. Dean of Louisville, Ky., who got the ordinance through the council and who installed the dictaphone, is the principal witness for the state. The dictaphone conversation notes, which were read into the records, contained alleged statements by Gibson to Dean in regard to the alleged misuse of money.

GERMANS IN DOUBT ABOUT FRIENDLINESS OF ENGLAND

COLOGNE, Dec. 16.—The Cologne Gazette's inspired Berlin dispatch today commenting on the London News article in which Anglo-German relations are discussed, says:

"The News correctly asserts that the desire for better relations will not be satisfied until English speeches are followed by English action. One would believe from reading the News that the greatest good will exist among the English and that closer relations between Great Britain and Germany would be in no wise difficult."

"Unfortunately it must be said that the News is far from expressing public opinion in England which now, as formerly, approves the policies which can be followed for the present situation."

"Of course," the Cologne continues, "there are some prominent Englishmen who have preserved the historic British openmindedness toward us."

"Lord Charles Beresford appears to have joined these recently but their influence is not strong enough to banish the News's article from the English regard German policies and what they believe to be behind them. The conviction that Germany is threatening Great Britain with ever sinister plan is so firmly rooted through years of incitement by a certain section of the press that it would be difficult to shake off. How deep this conviction is, and how it fits in with the hatred which has been born from the libels which have been spread against Germany."

A WANT AD IN THE GAZETTE IS WHAT BRINGS RESULTS

POSTOFFICE RECEIPTS ARE GREATLY INCREASED

The "shop early" crusade is having its effect in Colorado Springs, as evidenced by the work that the postoffice employees have been doing this month. The rush started five days earlier than last year, with the result that the office will have an easier time of it when the real rush begins. The records show that the postoffice for the first 15 days of the month has done 100 more business than for a corresponding time in 1910. Yesterday's business was a record-breaker for such an early day before Christmas. Ten clerks have been added to handle the Christmas work. The force at the central postoffice and at the substations will work 102 hours instead of eight hours a day until after New Years.

The receipts from the sale of post cards and stamps for the first 15 days in December amount to $14281 greater than the first 15 days in December, 1910. The total receipts up to December 15, 1910, were $124184, compared with $123344.85 in 1911.

TO SEND EAST MINIATURE MODEL OF WATER SYSTEM

A model has been taken at the city hall of the plaster of paris model of the city's mountain water system, and an exact duplicate in papier mache may be made for shipment to Washington to show the government officials the need of additional watered property. It depends on whether a delegation is sent from this city if the papier mache cast is sent east. The markings of the streams, woods, mountains, hills, bridges and roads are plainly shown on the mold. The plaster of paris mold was considered too heavy for transportation.

RECEPTION TO PATRONS AND FRIENDS OF LILLER SCHOOL

The patrons and friends of the Liller school were in attendance at the reception given Friday afternoon by the Liller District Improvement society in the newly completed addition and the thoroughly renovated old building. All were much gratified at the radical changes which have made the accommodations second to none in the city. Superintendent, Carlos M. Cole, welcomed the guests and expressed the gratification of all interested in the comfort and well-being of the pupils. Mrs. William Wells Price, the first president of the improvement society, who was so largely instrumental in the establishment of a kindergarten now having about 50 pupils, gave a timely greeting, also, Miss Knicker, acting principal. Miss Grace Cozens, violinist, and Nelson Brett, pianist, played during the afternoon. Tea was served from a table bright with large pink chrysanthemums with Mrs. Nicholson and Mrs. Hotchkiss pouring, assisted by the teachers of the school.

WOMAN'S CLUB DECLARES FOR CHILDREN'S BUREAU

The most important matter of business transacted by the Woman's club of Colorado Springs during the December general meeting held yesterday afternoon was the adoption of the following resolutions:

Whereas, in the industrial development of our country, tens of thousands of the children of our nation have become workers in factories, fields, mills, mines and other industries, to the ruin of their bodies, minds and morals, and the ultimate expense of the nation in efficient citizenship; and, Whereas, infant mortality is increasing at a frightful rate, and statistics show that defective children are numerous in our public schools, and these unnatural and ominous conditions threaten the very life of our great Commonwealth;

Resolved, That the Woman's club of Colorado Springs does hereby request Colorado's representatives in the national assembly to vote for the bill to establish a "children's bureau." We understand that this "children's bureau" proposes to do for the children of the nation what the bureau of animal industry in the department of agriculture is doing so effectively for the live stock of the nation. That is, investigate and report upon all matters pertaining to the welfare of children and child life.

Resolved, That our children are of far more value to this nation than its live stock, we urge you as representatives of the great state of Colorado to vote for and actively work for the establishment of a children's bureau.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to each and all of Colorado's representatives in the national assembly.

Announcement was made that arrangements had been made by the home and education department for a parliamentary law class under the instruction of Mrs. Bailey of the Woman's club of Denver, to begin the fourth Saturday in January.

Annual Children's Day

Yesterday was the annual "children's day" at the club, so, after the brief business session, the members assisted the chairman of the home and education department, Mrs. Joseph S. Whithead, and the social committee, in the entertainment of their little guests. The program consisted of piano solos by Jessie Newcomb, a piano duet by Dorothy Miller and Mildred Harding, two kindergarten stories told by Miss Ethel Gordon, and piano and violin selections by Miss Florence Stevens and Mrs. St. Clair for the grand march of the children to the banquet room, where ice cream and punch were served and each child received a box of candy.

The growing pleasure of the occasion, however, came last, when the children were taken to the Lyric theater, where for nearly an hour they gazed delightedly at the pictures, specially selected by the management for the "children's day" program, and approved by a committee from the Lyric league. The club members having the children in charge were guests of the management of the theater, and were as happy as their little guests and full of appreciation of the compliment.

WORLD'S TYPEWRITER CHAMPION COMING

It is the pleasure of the Underwood Typewriter Co. of this city to announce that within the next few weeks, Mr. Otis Blaisdell of New York city will visit Colorado Springs at which time he will demonstrate to all interested the wonderful speed of the Underwood typewriter. Mr. Blaisdell has for two years held the title of being the fastest typewriter operator in the world. He defended his title last October at the annual contest held at Madison Square Garden in New York city making a new world's record of 113 words per minute from unfamiliar matter, for 60 consecutive minutes. This record is truly a wonderful one, words are deducted from the net total for every error, and writing the speed mentioned it was necessary to write approximately 14 characters a second for 3,800 seconds. The trophy is a beautiful silver cup valued at over a thousand dollars and is donated by the leading typewriter companies of the world.

The authorities will not permit hoboes and tramps in Colorado Springs. Several arrests were made yesterday, and others will follow, it is reported. The men will be given a hearing tomorrow before Judge Shafter. Orders probably will be given for them to leave the city, and they will be armed with instructions to notify other itinerants to give Colorado Springs a wide berth.

Y. W. C. A. VESPER SERVICE

Mrs. Clyde Brooks will be the speaker at the vesper service of the Young Women's Christian association this afternoon at 5 o'clock in the rooms, 300 DeGraft building. The subject will be "Courage, the Dominant Note in the Life of Jesus." Miss Charity Proudfoot will sing. The women of the United Presbyterian church will have charge of the vesper tea at the close of the service.

A Des Moines man had an attack of muscular rheumatism in his shoulder. A friend advised him to go to Hot Springs. That meant an expense of $150.00 or more. He sought for a quicker and cheaper way to cure it, and found it in Chamberlain's Liniment. Three days after the first application of this liniment he was well. For sale by all dealers.

PROWLER REPORTED

A policeman was assigned a beat in the territory north of Blou street in the central part of the city last night, looking for a prowler who was reported the night previous as being in the vicinity of 432 North Nevada avenue, 321 East Boulder street and 346 East High street. No arrests have been made.

GIVES HANDSOME CALENDAR

The Colorado Title and Trust company is distributing a handsome calendar, the subject being "Rosetime," the famous painting by F. Percy Wild, a noted English portrait painter. The fact that Mr. Wild spent several weeks in this city some years ago and is known to many people here adds local interest to the calendar.

WHY IS A MAN?

Why is a man supposed to work 12 hours a day for 365 days in a year making a pile of money? Making him cross-grained and shortening his life? Which is better, to hoard money and leave it for your family and relatives to fight over or to devise some means for recreation, comfort and pleasure while you are with them? Sunday, you look at those beautiful Oakland cars that appeared on the streets yesterday. Finished like a piano, built like the rock of Gibraltar, power and speed of a railroad train, all the latest improvements, cheapest car in America, value considered. See them at Strang's garage. POULTRY SHOW CLOSSES

Laying Contest, Feature of Last Day, Resulted in Tie—18 Eggs for Each Pen

The closing hour of the poultry show last night the egg-laying contest declared a tie. Each of the two contained six hens, which had in the aggregate, 18 eggs per pen. First and second prizes were divided equally between the contestants. Enthusiastic crowds viewed the exhibition yesterday, and all seemed satisfied that it was the best poultry show ever held in Colorado Springs. The judging was closed Friday noon, so there was nothing to do yesterday save inspect the well-groomed plumage of the poultry and to watch the competing biddies in the egg-laying contest.

CHILDREN SELL TAGS WITH GREAT SUCCESS

Estimated That $100 Was Realized Yesterday With Which to Help Feed Poor on Christmas Day

It is estimated that at least $100 was realized yesterday from the sale of tags here. From early in the morning until late in the afternoon the school children were on the streets, stopping everyone with "Won't you please buy a tag?" And very few refused to "dig" and help the children get funds for the purpose of buying dinner for the poor.

This money will be used to buy chickens, which will be distributed among the poor of the city. Tomorrow each child in school will be asked to bring some vegetable or fruit to school to contribute to the dinner for the needy. The dinners will be distributed next Saturday, and Street Commissioner Geiger has offered the use of one of the city wagons and a teamster to help distribute them.

The young children also took much an interest in selling the tags are the ones who keep the money for the large subscriptions. All of them about 12, were on the streets all day, and were always busy. If they received a "No" or "I have one already" to their request to purchase a tag, it did not dampen their ardor in the least. They ran to the next person and repeated their question.

Mrs. Joe Ennis, who has charge of the contributions, said yesterday: "We have sold more tags than we expected, and we are greatly pleased with the way in which the people of Colorado City came forward and helped the cause. I have had no returns from the subscription papers yet, and hardly expect to until tomorrow, but I think that the merchants signed them in the same unhesitating way they bought the tags. I have received numerous contributions of clothing and canned fruits, and I think that we can provide for the needy of this city in a much better way than they have been provided for on any Christmas heretofore."

CHRISTMAS RUSH IS ON

For some time the merchants here have noticed an increase in business, but yesterday the Christmas rush started in earnest. The streets were crowded the greater part of the afternoon, and the people had commenced to assume the expressions of Christmas buyers. Many of the merchants reported the business to far exceed that of the same time last year, and

Walter Saves Girls

From a White Slaver

DENVER, Dec. 16.—By the arrest yesterday of one Sam Schecter there was revealed a story that parallels a chapter from Reginald W. Kaufman's "House of Bondage." It is a "white slave" story, and one of the most brutal that has come to the attention of Immigration Inspector Lou Ames, who caused the arrest of Schecter.

The man admits that he deserted his wife and child in New York, and he is charged with having brought Elsa and Margaret Eric, daughters of an orthodox Jewish rabbi, to Denver for immoral purposes.

The girls declare that they were kept prisoners, deprived of their clothes, and forced to go for days without food. Their schecter took them to a restaurant, not for the purpose of feeding them, but only to tantalize their appetites. After putting a keen edge on them, hunger by leading the men to them, it is said that he told them all they could have was a glass of beer. The girls wept aloud in their agony.

and attracted the attention of a waiter who was standing near. While Schecter was gone for a moment to telephone, the waiter spoke to the girls, and they told him of their plight, speaking in German, so that others should not understand.

It was the waiter who reported the affair to Immigration Inspector Adams, and Schecter was arrested.

It is charged that Schecter brought the girls from Buda Pesth, and that his scheme of keeping them half starved was so nearly successful that they were on the point of yielding to their jailer when they were unexpectedly saved by the waiter.

Germany has organized a movement along the lines of the Boy Scouts of England and America, and from reports of the enthusiastic with which the youth of the country have taken it up, its success seems assured. The Germans seem to have duplicated everything but the name of the "Scouts," calling theirs "The Pathfinders." It is said that the authorities, particularly those of the army, look with much favor on the organization and are giving it official encouragement and assistance.

GOVERNOR HAY REFUSES TO CALL A SPECIAL SESSION

Declares no Assurance Washington Legislature Would Enact Presidential Preference Primary Law

OLYMPIA, Wash., Dec. 15.—Governor Hay has declined to call a special session of the legislature for the enactment of a presidential preference primary law, and in a formal statement sets forth seven reasons for his action. The leaders of the movement for an extra session are mostly supporters of Senator McAllister.

Among the governor's objections are: That there is no assurance that the legislature would pass a presidential primary bill in the extra session, or that they would take up other legislation; that a presidential primary bill was killed at the last session, and that the people can express their preference for president under the present system by attending the party caucuses and primaries.

TITLED WOMEN BELONG TO "SOCIETY OF BIG FEET"

BERLIN, Dec. 15.—An extraordinary freak society, known as "Grosse Fuesse" or "Big Feet," has been started in Munich by Baroness Mohn, its object being to preach the gospel that big feet are not only healthy but beautiful. The baroness declares that she made the discovery while touring in the Bavarian highlands, which are much frequented by Berlin ladies who climb mountains in lace dresses and high boots with high heels.

The sneers of the local newspapers have not prevented the society, gaining many members, more than half of whom are ladies, of the Bavarian fashion. All the ladies pledge themselves to appear everywhere, even at court functions and dances, in the biggest possible boots, with sturdied heels, and they further undertake to bring up their children on the same principles.

DECORATED GRAVES OF DOGS

PARIS, Dec. 15.—The old saying that "every dog has his day" was exemplified in Paris this year. As most people know there is a dog cemetery outside on a little island on the Seine between Asnières and Olichy, called the "Cimetière des Ravageurs." This dog necropolis, known to Parisians as Canopolis, has 8,470 dogs buried in it. Besides these there are 250 cats, 10 canaries, seven horses, six fowls, four pigeons, two goats, one goose, a lion, a panther, and a calf.

On All Saints' day, although flowers were scarce, every grave in the Canopolis—8,510 of them in all—was decorated by a kindly and eccentric lot of four-footed creatures with a little bunch of violets.

On one stone over a grave are engraved the words: "Leo, Police Dog, killed on duty November 1899. And thereby hangs an interesting story."

Last November this animal was on duty when he was shot down by an apache, whom he was holding until his master came and M. Lepine ordered him to be buried in the "Cimetière des Ravageurs," and paid for a little grave-stone for him out of his own pocket.

INDIAN PRINCE PAYS PHYSICIAN BIG FEE

LONDON, Dec. 15.—A young London surgeon has just had the good fortune of receiving one of the largest fees ever paid to a member of the medical profession. Two months ago the doctor was summoned to India to attend the maharajah of Nepal. He found it necessary to perform an operation upon the patient, and this he carried out with complete success.

The surgeon is now on his way home, loaded with princely presents. Besides which he received a special fee of a lac of rupees, $33,330. The maharajah is one of the chief princes of India, and he is so far recovered that he attended the durbar at Delhi.

At the close of the festivities, King George is expected to visit the maharajah's province for big game shooting.

In handing to the young surgeon the lac of rupees, the prince expressed the opinion that he was only paying fair value for the benefit he had received.

TWO RUSSIAN STUDENTS ARRESTED FOR FRAUDS

ST. PETERSBURG, Dec. 15.—A university student and still higher in the rank of honor, according to Russian ideas—a student of the Military academy, have been arrested for successful thefts at the guard's stores, a cooperative undertaking for the best classes of society only. Both youths, who belong to good families, had been in the habit of manipulating the pay checks stamped by the cashier, on which the goods are handed over the counter. After making purchases for large sums—over $500 in one case—a small, separate purchase was made and the necessary figures inserted to cover the large purchase.

Another trick was more easily discovered. Here the prisoner had simply rubbed out the original figure and substituted a higher one. The interest attaching to the thefts is only accounted for by the rank of life to which the prisoners belong.

Looking for Man Who Accompanied Soldier-Dynamiter

ALLEGED VIOLATOR OF U.S. NEUTRALITY LAWS ARRESTED

JUNCTION CITY, Kan., Dec. 15.—Government officials engaged in the investigation of the recent series of explosions and fires at Fort Riley were searching for a strange man who was in company with Private Michael Quirk the night of September 13 last, when Quirk was arrested while trying to enter the pumping plant at Fort Riley. This man, garbed in soldier's uniform, and carrying a package in his hand, escaped while John Hartung, a special watchman, was placing Quirk under arrest. Quirk, whose confession resulted in the arrest of the Rev. Charles W. Brewer of Okla., and Mrs. Anna Jordan of Kansas City, has steadfastly refused to disclose his companion's name. Mrs. Jordan was released by the Kansas City police yesterday, and the Rev. Brewer is said to be on his way home from Oklahoma.

Watchman Hartung, who has since gone to California, discussed the arrest of Quirk with friends before he left here. Hartung described the man who accompanied Quirk as a medium-sized, thin, and proportionally large, and it could not have been Brewer, according to Hartung.

The belief that the Rev. Brewer and Mrs. Jordan were arrested merely on the strength of Quirk's confession without corroborative evidence grows stronger here. In spite of the fact that the confession is backed by good evidence. In some circles it is felt that if the government believed it had such a strong case against Mrs. Jordan it would not have been slow to return her to Kansas City to return her after her arrest. When the deputy United States marshal did arrive there Mrs. Jordan had been released by the Kansas City police.

The government officials apparently know nothing of the present whereabouts of the Rev. Brewer, although they say he will be here tomorrow.

OLD VILLAGES VANISHING BENEATH ARTIFICIAL LAKE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Many old villages on the Isthmus of Panama intimately associated with the story of the stirring buccaner days are soon to disappear forever beneath the surface of the vast artificial lake which is now slowly filling up between Gatun and Malachin.

The Canal Record gives a list and short historical sketch of some of the vanishing villages. Heading the list is the old town of Gatun which is already practically covered by two feet of water, and water. Other places destined to disappear are La Garta, Barbocon, Camillo, Matichin, Santa Cruz, Cruz de Juan, Balgo and Cruties.

The elephant can carry three tons on its back, but many a man has carried a mortgage heavier than that.

PROBING COMMITTEES ARE VERY EXPENSIVE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—The house "steel trust" investigating committee is costing congress $2,700 a month, while extra stenographic work for the committee at this session is costing $3,000 a month, according to statements made in a speech in the house today by Chairman Fitzgerald of the house committee on appropriations.

He added that the sugar trust investigating committee was costing $200 a month and the committee investigating postoffice expenditures $225 a month.

Charges that the executive heads of the government had pruned the appropriation estimates last year below the actual needs of the government service also marked the speech of Chairman Fitzgerald when the house took up the urgent deficiency appropriation bill.

The bill as reported from committee carried $2,884,754, a reduction of $1,632,588 from the estimate of department heads.

"Most of the appropriations carried by this bill are needed because the departments put in estimates too low last year," said Mr. Fitzgerald.

"We do not believe it is economy or good sense to cripple any government service by pruning estimates below the actual requirements."

Add to Prospective Deficit.

"Every new expenditure we authorize is adding to the prospective deficit in the treasury," said Representative Fitzgerald, in attacking an increase of the public building program.

"If this keeps on the house will not be devoting its efforts to reducing the burden of taxation, but must find new methods of raising revenue," he said.

ALLEGED VIOLATOR OF U.S. NEUTRALITY LAWS ARRESTED

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Dec. 15.—Ramirez Aguilero, an editor of El Imparcial, a local Mexican paper, was arrested here today on a charge of violation of the United States neutrality laws. He was held for appearance before the federal court at Brownsville and his bond fixed at $5,000.

The trial of Col. F. A. Shape, owner of El Imparcial, who was arrested several days ago on a similar charge, was postponed at the request of the government which desires to delay the case until the arrest of the others indicted in the same case.

Representative Palmer, leader of the economy board, to cut the annual military allowance from 20 cents per mile to 10 cents per mile. The Democratic foras split on the proposition and the plan was voted down, 95 to 158.

After fighting against red Indians and at sea, working in a powder factory, sailing round the world and surviving the San Francisco earthquake, an Englishman named Winslow recently received the first injury of his life by slipping on a banana peel.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Many prominent lawyers joined today in memorial exercises in the supreme court of the United States to the late Associate Justice John M. Harlan.

Augustus E. Willson, who retired from the gubernatorial chair of Kentucky this week, presided and made the opening address.

Solicitor General Lehmann, chairman of a committee on resolutions, said nothing in the way of preparation for action, either through the American embassy here or through Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador at Washington. A report, however, has been asked for from the German ambassador.

DENVER, Dec. 15.—F. W. Paget, as the representative of Sam Dutton, president of the Albany Hotel company, yesterday took over the management of the Albany hotel, purchased by the Dutton purchase of the day before. That the Savoy had been purchased by the Dutton interests Paget definitely announced last night, but he declined to name the consideration.

Seventy-five thousand dollars, he said, will be expended before the up-town establishment is put into the desired condition.

That Government Sees no Occasion to Concern Itself With Threats of Tariff Hostilities With U. S.

BERLIN, Dec. 15.—The German government sees no occasion to concern itself with the threats of tariff hostilities between Germany and the United States contained in a letter written by Secretary Knox to Representative Oscar W. Underwood, chairman of the ways and means committee of the house of representatives, in which the secretary suggests that the tariff act should be amended so as to provide additional duties or to prohibit importations of food from any nation which places restrictions on the entry of American goods.

The authorities will await the action of congress. The government has received nothing in the way of preparation for action, either through the American embassy here or through Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador at Washington. SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Dec. 15.—Fire today destroyed the annex to the Hotel Potter, one of the principal tourist-hoteliers on the Pacific coast, and for more than an hour threatened the main building. The blaze is believed to have started from an explosion of gasoline in the laundry drying room. Fifty thousand dollars will cover the loss.

CLASSY PLAYERS ON INDOOR BALL TEAMS

The indoor baseball season of 1911-1912 is now on in full blast. A competitive league has been formed with four teams fighting for the leadership. The teams that have entered the race are the Robbings, Powell-Doner, Holy Names and the West Siders.

The ball fans of the Springs have not shown a very keen interest in the game for the past few seasons, although the teams have put up a classy article of ball. The indoor game is even faster than the outdoor game. The main difference between the two games is that the indoor ball is played with a soft ball, much larger than the average baseball, the ball is thrown under-handed by the pitcher, and there are two shortstops instead of one as in the outdoor game.

The teams that are represented in the league are composed of some of the classiest indoor players in this section. Each team is in the race to stay, and the fight for high honors will be an interesting one. The teams will play scheduled games until the first of March when the leaders will play some team in Denver for the state championship.

"Big Boss" Robbins and his cronies are expecting to carry off the buntings at the close of the season. In the Robbings lineup are to be found some of the best indoor players in the state. Captain Behm, Goss and Hastings constitute a trio that will be hard to beat. The Robbings team has secured the boys' club gymnasium and the members are putting in some hard licks in perfecting team work.

The Powell-Doner team will be a hard proposition for the other teams to beat. The game that they put up against the Holy Names Friday night was one of the best exhibitions of indoor ball that has ever been played here. Both teams played errorless ball, with the Holy Names winning by a score of 3 to 1, as a result of a collection of two of the Powell-Doner players, Siddons, Gregg and Dickerson, make up a trio that compare favorably with any players in the league.

The Holy Names are in the race to stay, and the way they started the season with the Powell-Doner team shows them to be strong contenders for the high honors. In C. Haas, the Catholics have perhaps the best catcher in the league, and his battery mate, Barnes, is of the same caliber. In his opening game he allowed but two hits and struck out 20 batters. Bailey, Purcell and H. Haas are a group of stars that would strengthen any team.

The former champions, the West Side team, got off to a bad start in their first encounter, when the Robbings ran wild on the bases in the first inning. The West Siders have one of the best pitchers in the state in Schmidt. The success of the team rests on his ability to show the form that he displayed last season. It was his twirling that led the West Siders to the championship then.

DENVER W. L. TEAM IS ALREADY NAMED

ROSTER FOR 1912
Pitchers: Harris, Hawley, Kinsella, Olmstead, Schreiber, Kenworthy, Pfeffer, Glaser.
Catchers: Spahr and Frambes.
Infielders: Lindsay, first base; Lloyd, second base; Quillen, third base; Coffey, shortstop.
Outfielders: Kenworthy, Beall, Cassidy, Channell.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 16.—If anyone can devise ways and means by which the club can make expenses during the three weeks which intervene between the opening of the Coast and Western League season, 1912, will make Los Angeles the training mecca of the Denver team next season. Otherwise, it is probable that the Grizzlies will do their preliminary campaigning in the vicinity of Pike's Peak, for 25 able-bodied ballplayers can cheer a formidable chunk out of the club's exchequer during three weeks of aimless and gameless wandering.

McGill dropped something like $5,000 last spring exploring the wilds of Texas, and naturally wants to "be shown" the next time he takes his hirelings away from home.

Unless some of the other Western League magnates have been doing some phenomenal rebuilding this winter, the Denver club is running to premature decay; the Grizzlies are in line to grab off another season next season. This conclusion is based on the fact that Denver last season won the pennant by 20 full games, and will next year start the race with the club intact, thanks to the fact that McGill did not lose a player by sale or draft after July. In addition to this, he will have Pitchers Pfeffer of Fort Wayne and Howard of Canton and Outfielder Channell of Jackson, who were secured by draft. Kenworthy, who can pitch, has been acquired from the Boston Americans, and will be among those prised out when McGill presses the button for spring practice.

Channell made a swell start with the New York Americans last season, but had the misfortune to fracture one of his legs and this of course went back to the minors for him. He is said to have fully recovered from this injury to his underpinning.

PROPOSES $80,000,000 FOR ROADS IN NEXT 5 YEARS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—Franklin D. Roosevelt is expected to be appointed as a member of the committee to study the bill introduced today by Representative Henry D. Ford, of Michigan, which proposes the construction of a national highway system. The bill provides for the construction of a national highway system, to be known as the "National Highway System," and for the purpose of the construction of such a system, the sum of $80,000,000 is appropriated for the next five years.

NEWS AND VIEWS FOR SPORTSMEN

PIKES PEAK IS GIVEN AN ALL-STAR POSITION

By MONNY

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—The All-American selections are about all finished by this time and hardly in any case do we find two men picking identical teams. For instance, one man's all-star combination contains five Yale players; another's team had not a single Yalie on it. After all, when you consider the fact of the thing, you are forced to admit that an All-American team means very little, because of the uncertainty about it. Each man has a different point of view and picks different kind of players. My point of view at the present moment differs from that of all others, as can be seen by looking over my selections for first and second teams. Here is my first team of unbeatables:

Center—Pikes Peak.
Guard—Mammoth and Dinosaur.
Tackles—Pterodactyl and Steam Shovel.
Ends—Automobile and Aeroplane.
Quarterback—Light.
Halfbacks—Earthquake and Lightning.
Fullback—Pessimist.

Analysing, we find at center one that towers over all and in both hands.

FINISH IN BICYCLE RACE IS TAMI ON

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Joe Fogler of Brooklyn and "Jackie" Clarke of Melbourne, Australia, won the six-day bike race which ended at 10 o'clock in Madison Square garden. The Fogler-Clarke team finished one lap ahead of six other teams, bunched in a tie for second place.

The finish lacked the excitement of the windup of six-day races in recent years. Fogler and Clarke practically won the race at an early hour this morning, when a series of sprints resulted in their gaining a lap on the field. The advantage thus gained was held to the finish.

Fogler and Clarke won by pedaling 2,718 miles and 9 laps in 142 hours of the contest. To the six teams immediately following, 2,718 miles and 9 laps were credited. The winners were 13 miles and 2 laps behind the record of 2,737 miles and 1 lap made by McFarland and Moran in 1908. The final score was as follows:

Fogler and Clarke, 2,718 miles and 9 laps.
Kramm-Moran, 2,718 miles and 7 laps.
Lye-Gollman, Cameron-Magin, Demare-Lawrence, Lorenz-Saldow, 2,718 miles and 6 laps.
Hill and Bedell, 2,718 miles and 7 laps.
Georgel and Brocco, 2,718 miles, no laps.
Lapic and Vanhouwer, 2,717 miles and 6 laps.

Ball Players in Good Shape at All Times

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 16.—As baseball grows in age, the players are learning more and more. The modern ball player no longer regards baseball as a joy ride, but as a serious business. Today he now tries to last as long as possible, and make as much money out of it as he can.

Two members of the world champions who are wintering in Philadelphia do not propose to suffer any physical slump during the off season. They are Ruben Olding, the swift centerfielder, and Jack Lapp, who had graduated from a third string to a first string catcher. Lapp is the best batting catcher in America today.

Olding and Lapp do not propose to become fat and lazy during the off season, so they joined the Athletic club of Philadelphia recently. This enables them to fall privileges of the big clubhouse and gymnasium in Arch street as well as the well-appointed country club in Delaware county, which boasts of one of the best golf links in this vicinity.

Between working in the gymnasium and playing golf at the Country club, both Olding and Lapp will report to Mack next spring in the best of condition. Lapp weighs around the 182 mark, and is only two pounds heavier than during the playing season.

Olding is heavy for a fast man. During the playing season his weight is around the 150-pound mark. He jumped on the scales last week, and he was only four pounds above his playing weight. When Olding and Lapp get at their gymnasium and golfing in earnest they will work off this slight excess and report next spring in perfect condition.

It is a fact that many players have vain their big league careers shortened because they refused to take care of themselves during the winter. A man making 175 pounds in condition would take on an average of eight pounds every year, and in three or four years he would find himself too fat to play. This is nothing new; it's an old story, and many a promising player has been ruined to the minors because he never took care of himself during the winter months.

If it does not have to do with about his men during the off season, every member on his own part, the importance of keeping in condition and down to weight; in fact, if they didn't they wouldn't be on his team, for Connie won't stand for any players who are not ambitious.

WOLGAST TO TRAIN AGAIN FOR BRITON

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 16.—Ad Wolgast denied today the report that he would go to his home at Cadillac, Mich., as soon as he left the hospital. Instead, he said, he would go to Venice and stay there until after the Allen-Kilbane fight here on February 22.

"After that if I am feeling right, I intend to go into the mountains for a week or two and then will take a trip through the south to Savannah, Ga., and perhaps to Philadelphia," he said. "I intend to come back to Los Angeles and begin preparing for my fight with Freddie Welsh which will occur about July 4 at Vernon."

"I am in fine shape now and feeling strong enough to leave the hospital and hope to be outside in another week."

II. Steinfeldt Will Not Get Boston Salary

CINCINNATI, Dec. 16.—The National baseball commission in a decision promulgated today dismissed the claim of Third Baseman Harry Steinfeldt for salary from the Boston National League club but declared him to be a free agent.

Steinfeldt protested to the commission at his suspension during the latter part of the season of 1911 by Boston for disability, claiming that it was the result of an injury received in its service. He also requested that he be awarded salary for that period or be declared a free agent.

The Boston club contended that it was within its right in suspending the player but on December 9 notified the commission that its directors had granted him an unconditional release.

According to statistics collected by the geological survey and the bureau of the census, the output of coal in the United States during 1910 was 489,295,073 short tons, an increase of about 10 per cent over the production of 1909. The figures of 1910 are not yet available. The increase mentioned was entirely in bituminous coal. Anthracite showed a decrease. The total amount of bituminous coal produced in the United States in 1910 was 378,551,084 short tons. Pennsylvania leads in the production of both kinds; West Virginia and Illinois run a close race, in the order named, for second place; Ohio, Kansas, and Kentucky follow, in that order.

WELSH AND MCFARLAND HAVE EXCUSES READY

By W. W. NAUGHTON

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 16.—The close of the year 1911 finds the boxing situation gloriously confused. With Jack Johnson and Billy Wolfe retired, with Sam Langford and several other American fighters in Australia, with Ad Wolgast recovering from the effects of an operation, with Abe Attell determinedly holding aloof from the coming lines in his class and with Packey McFarland and Freddie Welsh back in public opinion owing to disappointing ring work, there does not seem to be much interest in the outlook for the pugilistic pastime to glow over.

Welsh and McFarland are full of excuses for their failure to make good. Packey for a day or two after his attack with Tommy Murphy said he did not know what was wrong with him, but that he was satisfied he was not himself. Freddie Welsh came to the rescue to the extent of saying the whole camp was puzzled at Packey's behavior in the day preceding the fight. Packey, according to Emil, used to shut himself up in his room and mope.

When taking the train for Chicago, Packey, in a burst of confidence, said it was the breach of promise case instituted against him in Chicago that caused him and left him unable to treat Murphy the way Murphy should be treated.

Freddie Welsh does not claim that the "little god, love" deterred him from doing his best. He said to begin with that he received a severe shock when he heard the news of Wolgast's sudden seizure and that that disappointment kept him from showing his best against Willie Ritchie. Later Freddie explained as follows:

"If any one is dissatisfied with my work in the Vernon arena, let him remember this much. I was for months looking forward to and preparing for the most important contest of my career—one that involved the chance of winning the championship. I was to go against Wolgast, the rugged, rushing fighter, by some called the Michigan Wildcat, and by others the Human Cyclone. All my training was done with a view of fitting myself to handle an opponent who was expected to come at me head down and tearing at the month, as it were. Of necessity I had to think about and practice defensive tactics. Then Wolgast fell sick and the whole prospect changed. With 12 hours' notice, I was expected to prepare myself for an entirely different kind of fight. I was to become the human cyclone in fact, and knock Ritchie out of the ring. I didn't, no excuse was expected of me. I think any reasonable person will admit that a good deal can be said in defense of the failure."

McFarland and Welsh are hoping, of course, to reinstate themselves, but it can't be said right now that the public will expect very much from them in the future. The notion prevails that they are, not stupid enough to hold their own with Wolgast and other able-bodied youngsters who are fast coming to the front. Packey and Freddie are fine and game fellows and all that, but they go off edge far too easily. On the score that men who have been at the game as long as they have seldom improve in any direction, it is not likely that they will be seriously considered as championship candidates in the future. When Wolgast gets well we must keep an eye on Joe Mandot, Grover Hayes and the other young "roughnecks" of the 133-pound division. For these are the fellows most likely to make things interesting for the champion.

Abe Attell is doing a full share toward making the pugilistic outlook as dull as ditchwater. He is exhibiting a strange character. Always a shrewd matchmaker, he never hesitates to hook up with men far bigger than himself, as his matches with Matt Wells and Battling Nelson will attest. He argues, no doubt, that a defeat by a bigger man never acts as a setback. Attell avoids promising youngsters of his own poundage as he does a pestilence. Right now we have Johnny Kilbane, the survivor of a series of featherweight contests, in which Joe Rivers, Patsy Cline, Joe Carter and Frank Conley were the other contenders. Kilbane is Attell's logical opponent for the featherweight championship and is not only ready but eager for the fray.

Attell seemingly does not want to become a party to a genuine championship battle.

LONDON FIGHT FANS TO BUILD BIG HOME

By PHILIP EVERETT

LONDON, Dec. 16.—Undaunted by the blow to boxing in this country by the action of the home office in stopping the Welsh-Johnson fight, and the subsequent police court decision in Birmingham, several well-known sporting men have decided to promote an ambitious athletic club in London. The money, something like $50,000, is being found.

A hall, with a seating capacity of more than 15,000, is to be erected immediately in Euston road, near St. Pancras and Euston railroad stations.

Primarily the new hall is to be used for boxing contests, it being intended to bring the stars in the boxing world—like Carpentier, the Frenchman; Jimmy Clabby, Johnny Coulon, Packy McFarland, the American; "Digger" Stanley, Jim Driscoll, Owen Moran, Matt Wells and Bombardier Wells—to London to compete.

It is the intention of the promoters to provide these boxers purses far bigger than the National Sporting club is willing to offer, and the chances are that most of them will be induced to journey to London and make their appearance in the new hall, the authorities permitting.

According to the present plans of the promoters, 3,000 seats will be sold, and will become the property of the buyers at a price of $50 per year, which includes admission to all contests and entertainment.

Wrestling matches will also be put on, and the best men on this side of the water will be pitted against each other in an effort to find a man capable of lowering the colors of Frank Gotch.

When boxing and wrestling matches are not being held the hall will be used for concerts, political meetings or lectures.

MORRIS SHOULD BE GIVEN SOME CREDIT

By EDWARD W. SMITH

CHICAGO, Dec. 16. Why not give this big fellow, Carl Morris, credit for a little something? The Oklahoma giant is jammed right and left whatever he does. If he loses a battle he is toasted to a finish for his poor showing. If he wins one everybody laughs and deplores the caliber of the duels that are sent against him.

The other night Carl slammed a big chap named Bill Bass into a state of helplessness in less than one round. The critics who saw the bout described it as one rare old joke. They said all sorts of unkind things about Bass and didn't do much better by Morris.

Yet only a short time before that we read in the eastern papers that Bill Bass, who had been returned winner of one of the "white hope" tournament fights in Philadelphia, was the "real goods," and probably would prove a tartar for any of them.

Now, this is no argument along the lines that Carl Morris is a champion of destiny to be. From a careful stock-taking of his physical qualifications, I am inclined to think that he isn't built right—too shallow through the neck for one thing. But that isn't going to stop him from becoming a pretty good heavyweight if he has a few more years with him. He is getting more experience every day now and it's going to take a pretty fair sort of man to upset him for the count.

Jim Flynn, as hard and as tough a fighter as he is, couldn't do it and that is a good argument in favor of Morris' stamina and gameness, two undoubtedly strong qualifications for a "hope."

Let's give Carl a better chance. He is earnest and honest and that's a whole lot in his favor.

CLASSY PLAYERS ON
INDOOR BALL TEAMS

By IRVIN RUCE

The indoor baseball season of 1911-12 is now on in full blast. A commercial league has been formed with four teams fighting for the leadership. The teams that have entered the race are the Robins, Powell-Doner, Holy Names and the West Sides.

The ball fans of the Springs have not shown a very keen interest in the game for the past few seasons, although the teams have put up a classy article of ball. This indoor game is even faster than the outdoor game. The main difference between the two games is that the indoor ball is played with a soft ball, much larger than the average baseball. The ball is thrown under-handed by the pitcher, and there are two shortstops instead of one as in the outdoor game.

The teams that are represented in the league are composed of some of the greatest indoor players in this section. Each team is in the race to stay and the fight for high honors will be an interesting one. The teams will be playing scheduled games until the first of March when the leaders will play some team in Denver for the state championship.

"Big Boss" Robbins and his youngsters are expecting to carry off the bunting at the close of the season. In the Robins lineup are to be found some of the best indoor players in the state. Captain Robin, then and Hastings constitute a trio that will be hard to beat. The Robins team has secured the Boys club championship and the members are putting in some hard hits in perfecting team work.

The Powell-Doner team will be a hard proposition for the other teams to beat. The game that they put up against the Holy Names Friday night was one of the best exhibitions of indoor ball that has ever been played here. Both teams played errorless ball with the Holy Names winning by a score of 3 to 1 as a result of a collision of two of the Powell-Doner players. Siddons, Grege and Dickerson make up a trio that compare favorably with any players in the league. The Holy Names are in the race to stay and the way they started the season with the Powell-Doner team shows them to be strong contenders for the high honors. In C. Haas, the Catholics have perhaps the best catcher in the league and his battery partner, Barnes, is of the same caliber. In his machine game he allowed but two hits and struck out 23 batters. Bailey, Purcell and H. Haas are a group of stars that would strengthen any team. The former champions, the West Side team, got off to a bad start in their first encounter, when the Robins ran wild on the bases in the first inning. The West Sides have one of the best pitchers in the state in Schilling. The success of the team rests on his ability to show the form that he displayed last season. It was his twirling that led the West Sides to the championship, then.

DENVER W. L. TEAM IS ALREADY NAMED

ROSTER FOR 1912

Pitchers—Harris, Healey, Kinsella, Olmstead, Schreiber, Kenworthy, Pfeffer, Girard.
Catchers—Spahr and Franes.
Infielders—Lindsay, first base; Lloyd, second base; Quillen, third base; Coffey, shortstop.
Outfielders—Kenworthy, Beall, Cassidy, Channell.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 16.—If anyone can devise ways and means by which the club can make expenses during the three weeks which intervene between the opening of the Coast and Western League seasons, McGill will make Los Angeles the training ground of the Denver team next season. Otherwise it is probable that the Grizzlies will do their preliminary gambling in the vicinity of Pike's Peak, for a formidable chunk out of the club's expenditures during three weeks of aimless and aimless wandering.

McGill dropped something like $5,000 last spring exploring the wilds of Texas, and naturally wants to "be shown" the next time he takes his hirelings away from home. Unless some of the other Western League magnates have been doing some phenomenal rebuilding this winter, the Denver club is running to premature decay, the Grizzlies are in line to grab off another Gonzales next season. This conclusion is based on the fact that Denver last season won the pennant by 20 full games, and will next year start the race with the club intact, thanks to the fact that McGill did not lose a player by sale or draft after July. In addition to these he will have Pitchers Pfeffer of Fort Worth and Guard of Trenton and Outfielder Channell of Mansfield, who were secured by draft. Kenworthy, who can pitch or play the outfield with equal facility, has been repurchased from the Boston Americans, and will be among those present when McGill presides the auction for spring practice. Channell made a swell start with the New York Americans last season, but had the misfortune to shatter one of his legs, and this, of course, meant back to the minors for him. He is said to have fully recovered from this injury to his underpinning.

BREWER'S MILLIONS IS AN ATTRACTIVE PLAY

"Brewer's Millions" was presented at the Opera house last night before a much smaller audience than it deserved. The fact that it has been seen here before is probably responsible for the small attendance.

Louis Kimball, as Monty, portrayed well the nonchalant air of a man who is spending a million in a year and knows just why he is doing it. Grace Nile, as Peggy, Monty's sweetheart, quite adapted herself to the role of the sweet, trusting girl. The fortune of the play, however, takes place in the third act, when the yacht scene is reproduced. This, in itself, is noteworthy, and far ahead of the average "scenic production."

The candy bill in the United States last year reached the astonishing aggregate of $78,000,000.

KANSAS CITY HOTEL

A LANDMARK BURNS

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 16.—Fifty lightly clad guests of the Wellington hotel on lower Walnut street were carried from their rooms by firemen or escaped down fire ladders during a fire that began shortly before midnight and which destroyed the hotel. The loss is estimated at $50,000. The Wellington was a landmark of Kansas City. It was built 40 years ago and was known to everyone who visited here in earlier days.

NEWS AND VIEWS FOR SPORTSMEN

PIKES PEAK IS GIVEN AN ALL-STAR POSITION

By MONTY

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—The All-American selections are about as finished by this time and hardly in any case do we find two men picking identical teams. For instance, one man's all-star combination contains five Yale players; another team had not a single Yalie on it. After all, when you consider the fact of the thing, you are forced to admit that an All-American team means very little, because of the uncertainty about it. Each man has a different point of view and picks different kind of players. My point of view at the present moment differs from that of all others, as can be seen by looking over my selections for first and second teams. Here is my first team of unbeatables:

Center—Pikes Peak.
 Guards—Mammoth and Dinosaur.
 Tackles—Pterodactyl and Steam Shovel.
 Ends—Automobile and Aeroplane.
 Quarterback—Light.
 Halfbacks—Earthquake and Lightning.
 Fullback—Pessimist.

Analyzing, we find at center, one that towers over all and is both sharp

FINISH IN BICYCLE RACE IS TAME ONE

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—Joe Fogler of Brooklyn and "Jackie" Clarke of Melbourne, Australia, won the six-day bike race which ended at 10 o'clock in Madison Square garden. The Fogler-Clarke team finished one lap ahead of six other teams, hunched in a tie for second place.

The finish lacked the excitement of the windup of six-day races in recent years. Fogler and Clarke practically won the race at an early hour this morning, when a series of sprints resulted in their gaining a lap on the field. The advantage thus gained was held to the finish.

Fogler and Clarke won by pedaling 2,718 miles and 9 laps in 142 hours of the contest. To the six teams immediately following, 2,715 miles and 8 laps were credited. The winners were 13 miles and 2 laps behind the record of 2,737 miles and 1 lap made by McFarland and Moran in 1908. The final score was as follows:

Fogler and Clarke, 2,718 miles and 9 laps.
 Kramer-Moran, Halsted-Drobach, Fry-Collins, Cameron-Magin, Demars-Lawrence, Lorenz-Saldow, 2,715 miles and 8 laps.
 Hill and Redell, 2,715 miles and 7 laps.
 Georget and Broccio, 2,718 miles, no laps.
 Lapize and Vanhouwaert, 2,717 miles and 6 laps.

Ball Players in Good Shape at All Times

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 16.—As baseball grows in age, the players are learning more and more. The modern ball toger no longer regards baseball as a joy ride, but as a serious business. Today he now tries to last as long as possible, and make as much money out of it as he can.

Two members of the world champions who are wintering in Philadelphia do not propose to suffer any physical slump during the off season. They are Rubie Oldring, the swift centerfielder, and Jack Lapp, who had graduated from a third string to a first string catcher in America today.

Oldring and Lapp do not propose to become fat and lazy during the off season, so they joined the Athletic club of Philadelphia recently. This entitles them to full privileges of the big clubhouse and gymnasium in Arch street, as well as the well-appointed Country club in Delaware county, which boasts of one of the best golf links in this vicinity.

Between working in the gymnasium and playing golf at the Country club, both Oldring and Lapp will report to Mack next spring in the best of condition. Lapp weighs around the 182 mark, and is only two pounds heavier than during the playing season.

Oldring is heavy for a fast man. During the playing season his weight is around 175 pounds. He jumped on the scales last week, and he was only four pounds above his playing weight. When Oldring and Lapp get at their gymnasium and golfing in earnest they will work off this slight excess and report next spring in perfect condition.

It is a fact that many players have seen their big league careers shortened because they refused to take care of themselves during the winter. A man weighing 175 pounds in condition would take on an average of eight pounds every year, and in three or four years he would find himself too fat to play. This is nothing new; it's an old story, and many a promising player has been railroaded to the minors because he never took care of himself during the winter months.

Connie Mack does not have to worry about his men during the off season. Nearly every member on his team realizes the importance of keeping in condition and down to weight; in fact, if they didn't they wouldn't be on his team, for Connie won't stand for any players who are not ambitious.

WOLGAST TO TRAIN AGAIN FOR BRITON

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 16.—Ad Wolgast denied today the report that he would go to his home at Cadillac, Mich., as soon as he left the hospital. Instead, he said he would go to Venice and stay there until after the Allyn-Kilbane fight here on February 22.

"After that if I am feeling right, I intend to go into the mountains for a week or two and then will take a trip through the south to Savannah, Ga., and perhaps to Philadelphia," he said.

"I intend to come back to Los Angeles and begin preparing for my fight with Freddie Welsh which will occur about July 4 at Venice."

"I am in fine shape now and feeling strong enough to leave the hospital and hope to be outside in another week."

BRUNSWICK SCORES

Murray put up a mark on the Brunswick alleys last week that will probably stand for some weeks to come as far as local bowling is concerned. He scored 289 in one game. The roll of honor for the week includes:

Murray, 249; Redlberger, 256; J. Johnson, 234; 230, 202, 202; Moore, 232, 209, 201; Davies, 228; Wright, 218, 232, 201; E. Johnson, 201, 211; Littenberger, 215; Nydegger, 215; Harnett, 208; Carey, 204; Deichman, 204; Munition, 200; McClellan, 217; Huber, 211.

Here is the standing of the teams in the Business Men's Bowling League:

TEAM	Won	Lost	Pct.
Sanitary Dairy	15	3	.833
Michie's	14	6	.692
Florida	8	6	.571
Culverda Fuel	8	7	.533

According to statistics collected by the geological survey and the bureau of the census, the output of coal in the United States during 1909 was 459,208,073 short tons, an increase of about 10 per cent over the production of 1908. The figures of 1910 are not yet available. The increase mentioned was entirely in bituminous coal. Anthracite showed a decrease. The total amount of bituminous coal produced in the United States in 1909 was 373,551,094 short tons. Pennsylvania leads in the production of both kinds; West Virginia and Illinois run a close race, in the order named, for second place; Ohio stands in the fourth place, and Indiana in the fifth.

Modern railroad signals are the outgrowth of the invention of a Scotchman, who, obliged to walk some distance to set a signal, attached wires to it and operated it from his shelter, where he could take his ease.

II. Steinfeldt Will Not Get Boston Salary

CINCINNATI, Dec. 16.—The National baseball commission in a decision promulgated today dismissed the claim of Philip Steinfeldt for salary from the Boston National league club but declared him to be a free agent.

Steinfeldt protested to the commission at his suspension during the latter part of the season of 1911 by Boston for disability, claiming that it was the result of an injury received in its service. He also requested that he be awarded salary for that period or be declared a free agent.

The Boston club contended that it was within its right in suspending the player but on December 9 notified the commission that its directors had granted him an unconditional release.

JOHNSON HOPES GIANTS BRING LIBEL SUIT

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—President B. B. Johnson of the American league said tonight that he would welcome a libel suit such as that threatened by the New York National club. The threatened suit grows out of charges

WELSH AND MCFARLAND HAVE EXCUSES READY

By W. W. NAUGHTON

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 16.—The boxing situation is somewhat confused. With Jack Johnson and Billy Wolfe retired, and with Sam Langford and several other American fighters on Australia, with Ad Wolgast recovering from the effects of an operation with Abe Attell, it is difficult to hold a bout from the coming year. The public opinion, owing to the disappointing ring work, there does not seem to be much interest in the outlook for the pugilistic pastime to glow over.

Welsh and McFarland are full of excuses for their failure to make good. Packey for a day or two after his affair with Tommy Murphy said he did not know what was wrong with him, but that he was satisfied he was not himself. Emilio Tilly came to the rescue to the extent of saying the whole camp was puzzled at Packey's behavior in the day preceding the fight.

Packey, according to Tilly, used to shut himself up in his room and mope. When taking the train for Chicago, Packey in a burst of confidence, said it was the breach of promise case instituted against him in Chicago that unnerved him and left him unable to treat properly the way Murphy should be treated.

Freddy Welsh does not claim that the "little god, Love" deterred him from doing his best. He said to begin with that he received a severe shock when he heard the news of Wolgast's sudden seizure, and that and disappointment kept him from showing his best against Willie Ritchie. Later Freddie explained as follows:

"If any one is dissatisfied with my work in the Vernon arena, let him remember this much. I was for months looking forward to and preparing for the most important contest of my career—one that involved the chance of winning the championship. I was to go against Wolgast, the rugged, rushing fighter, by some called the Michigan Cyclone, and by others the Human Cyclone. All my training was done with a view of fitting myself to come at me head down and foaming at the mouth, as it were. Of necessity I had to think about and practice defensive tactics. Then Wolgast fell sick and the whole prospect changed. With 12 hours notice, I was expected to prepare myself for any of the great different kind of fight. I was to become an offensive fighter in that situation, a gloriously confused one. With Jack Johnson and Billy Wolfe retired, and with Sam Langford and several other American fighters on Australia, with Ad Wolgast recovering from the effects of an operation with Abe Attell, it is difficult to hold a bout from the coming year. MORRIS SHOULD BE GIVEN SOME CREDIT

By EDWARD W. SMITH

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—Why not give this big fellow, Carl Morris, credit for a little something? The Oklahoma giant is jammed right and left what ever he does. If he loses a battle he is toasted to a finish for his poor showing. If he wins one everybody laughs and derides the caliber of the duels that are sent against him.

The other night Carl slammed a big chap named Bill Bass into a state of helplessness in less than one round. The critics who saw the bout described it as one rare old joke. They said all sorts of unkind things about Bass and didn't do much better for Morris.

Yet only a short time before that we read in the eastern papers that Bill Bass, who had been returned winner of one of the "white hope" tournament fights in Philadelphia, was "the goods," and probably would prove a Tarrar for any of them.

We now have no argument along the lines that Carl Morris is a champion of destined to be. From a careful stock-taking of his physical qualifications, I am inclined to think that he isn't built right—too shallow through the neck for one thing. But that isn't going to stop him from becoming a pretty good heavyweight if his hands, as he says, have experience over 5 days now and it's going to take a pretty fair sort of man to upset him for the count.

Jim Flynn, as hard and as tough a fighter as he is, couldn't do it and that is a good argument in favor of Morris' stamina and gameness, two undoubtedly strong qualifications for a "hope."

Let's give Carl a better chance. He is earnest and honest and that's a whole lot in his favor.

George Ade's New Fables in Slang

1912 Models

The New Fable of Everybody's Friend and the Line-Bucker.

By George Ade

Pictures by Albert Levering

In a sequestered dump lived two urchins, Edgar and Rufus, who went to the Post with about an equal handicap.

They got away together down the broad Avenue of Hope which leads one Lad over the hills and far away to the United States Senate Chamber and guides another unerringly to the Federal Pen near Leavenworth, Kansas.

When Edgar was a Tooley he received a frequent dusting with Extreme Violet Talcum Powder and was allowed to play with a flaxen-haired Doll named Celeste.

About the same time, Rufus began to take Cold Baths and was Resides, his Parents had convinced him that if he went fishing he wouldn't get a Nibble, and if he climbed a Tree he would fall and break his Leg; and if he tried to manipulate more than Two Dollars at one time he would go Blink.

Therefore, when both were in College, Rufus acted as plunging Half-Back, with Blue Smoke coming from his Nostrils, and achieved the undying distinction of being singled out by Walter Camp.

Edgar sat up on the Bleachers with 2,800 other Mere Students and lent a quavering Tenor to a Song about Alma Mater.

Even the Undergrads could not take the Tuck out of Rufus.

He was fresher than Green Paint and his Work was Raw, but he was so Resilient that no one could pin him to the Mat and keep him there.

When a Boy has been told 877 times a Day for many Years that he is the Principal Feature of the Landscape, it takes more than ordinary Doctoring to Cure him.

He left College thoroughly convinced that the World was his Oyster and that he had an Opener in every Pocket.

He began grabbing Public Service Utilities by Strong-Arm methods, whereupon a lot of Uplifters became excited and wanted some one else to head him off.

He put things Across because when he tucked the Ball under his Arm and began to dig for the Goal of his Immediate Ambition, all the Friends of Public Weal were scared Blue and retired behind the Ropes.

Edgar took his Degree out into the Cold World and began to make apologetic Inquiries regarding Humble Employment which would involve no Responsibilities.

He became an Office Lawyer of the dull gray Variety with a special aptitude for drawing up Leases and examining Abstracts.

He could not face a Jury or fight a Case, because the fond Parents had put the Sign on him and robbed him of all his Gimp.

But a Nice Fellow?

You know it.

Anyone who had a Book to sell, or a Petition to be signed, or a Note that needed indorsing came dashing right into Edgar's Office and hailed him as the Champion Patsy.

Not one of these ever ventured into the Lair of the Street Railway Czar, for he knew that Rufus might jump over the Mahogany Table and bite him in the Arm.

Even Edgar, when he made a business call on Rufus, came and lovingly clasped him, and permitted to wait in the Outer Room, resting his Hat on his knees, and mingling on terms of Equality with the modish Typist and the scornful Secretary.

And when they went away to look at some Properties, Rufus took the Stateroom while Edgar drew an Upper.

Any great big Brute of a Man with a Tigerish Instinct for pouncing on each Good Thing and then hanging on to it like Grim Death never can win the Esteem of the envious but anemic Gally.

Everyone at the Club referred to Edgar as a Good Old Scout, but when all the Push gathered at the Round Table and some one propped up to look at Pictures of Napoleon and John J. Sullivan and Sitting Bull.

IMMEDIATELY THERE WOULD BE AN EPIDEMIC OF GOOSE PIMPLES AND A RUSH TO SHAKE HANDS WITH HIM.

At School each was a trifle Dumb.

If Edgar fell down on an Exam, his Relatives would call a Mass Meeting to express Regrets and hang Crepe all over the Place.

If Rufus got balled up in his Answers, his immediate Kin would pat him on the Back and tell him he was right and the Text-Book was wrong.

Edgar would emerge from the Feathers every morning to find his Parents all lined up to wish him a new set of Policing Regulations.

They held up the Rigid Forefinger and warned him that he was merely a Grain of Dust and a Weakling and a poor juvenile Mutt whose Mission in Life was to Lie Down and Behave.

Rufus would be aroused each Sunrise by a full Military Band of 60 Pieces playing "Hail to the Chief who in Triumph Advances."

Between the Buckwheats and the Sorghum, the two Family Boosters would slip him the pleasing Information that never since the Morning Stars pulled their first Harmonies had there bounded into the Arena another such Prodigy of Intellectual Brilliance and Physical Valor.

Consequently when Rufus hit the Fresh Air, with the McGuffey under the Arm, he wore his Chest about a foot in front of him.

He acknowledged with a Slight Nod the Salutation from some Member of the Town Board.

Edgar, staggering under a Ton of Restrictive Advice, would spot Rufus at a Distance and sneak into an Alley, because he didn't wish to get Blood all over his Clean Waist.

Whenever Edgar was forced into a Battle and came home smeared and disarranged, his Mother would go to her Room and Cry softly and Father would Paint a vivid Word-Picture of a Wretch standing on the Gallows with a Black Cap over his Head.

Then Edgar would crawl to the Hay-Mow and brood over his Moral Infirmities and try in a groping way to figure out his Relation to Things in General.

But, when Rufus appeared all dripping with Gore, his Seconds would cool him out and rub him with Witch Hazel and pin Medals on him and indicate to him on a Chart the exact latitude and longitude of the Solar Plexus.

His Parents made the Grave Mistake of backing him to the Limit. They pumped him full of Courage every Morning and set him out to Lick all Comers.

No wonder he became as pugnacious as U. S. Grant, as contented as a Successful Business Man and as self-assured as a Chautauqua Lecturer.

Everyone disliked him intensely, but just the same they stepped off into the Mud and gave him the entire double width of Cement Sidewalk.

Edgar, on the other hand, was one of the most popular Door-Mats that ever had "Welcome" marked up and down his Spinal Column.

All those who scratched Matches on him and used him as a Combination Hall-Tree and Hitching Post used to remark that he didn't have an Enemy in the World.

They had corralled his Goat, so he had to play the Part himself. It had been dinged into him that True Politeness means to wait until everyone else has been Served and then murmur a few Thanks for the LEAVINGS.

HE BECAME AS PUGNACIOUS AS U. S. GRANT.

let fall the Name of the High-Binder, they would open up on Rufus and Pan him to a Whisper.

Then Rufus would enter in his Fur Coat, upsetting Furniture and Servants as he swept through the Lounging Room.

Immediately there would be an Epidemic of Goose Pimples and a Rush to shake hands with him.

Rufus was sinfully Rich, but nevertheless Detestable, because his family had drilled into him the low-down Habit of getting the Jump on the Other Fellow.

Edgar may live in a Rented House, but he will always have the inward Satisfaction of knowing that he is a sweet and courteous Gentleman with Pink Underwear, and a Masonic Charm on his Watch Chain.

When Edgar answers the Call, the Preacher will speak briefly from the Text, "Blessed are the Meek."

If the Death Angel succeeds in pulling down Rufus, the same Minister will find a Suggestion for his Remarks in those inspiring Words, "I have fought the Good Fight."

Mason Wouldn't Play Poker for Money but Quit the Game Rich

Didn't Know, Till the Game Was Over, That He Wasn't Playing for Chips, Like He Used to, With His Sister

From the Washington Post.

"I've known plenty of men who have played poker all their lives and never made a cent," said the Orville Creek man, as he set down the bottle and took up the glass, "but I never knew but one fellow who never gambled at all and yet made money at the game."

"That's a neat dwelling house," in Orville Creek's opinion, a prosperous guy, "thirty three years old, a fine fellow, and both of them, he got through his winning in a poker game, though he is now and always has been bitterly opposed to gambling in every form, especially poker, and will tell you that he never bet a cent on anything in his life—which is the truth."

"Some 10 years ago, when the miles of that district were opening up bigger and bigger every day, the camp began to attract the attention of the big mining operators in the older camps. Men from Butte and Deadwood and the Mogollon country began to drop in, looking for good prospects."

"With money, I think, they were, but they didn't look at the price in the ground showed for well."

"Of course, they had a touch of sporting blood in their makeup, being miners, and these fellows were always in their class, and couldn't find much amusement in the ordinary power games of the regular houses in the camp. They'd have gone to sleep over it. So Buck Nevada, who ran the Golden Palace saloon, fenced off a corner of his big poker room, with a partition for the special benefit of these high rollers, and as they didn't want to be bothered with backing the game, they made arrangements with Buck to have his cashier do the banking for them."

"Buck just instructed the cashier to let anyone at that table have all the chips he wanted. After each game the cashier would figure their winnings with the cashier, and he'd hand over the cash to them. The next morning the miners'd send around the cash to him."

"In explaining all this so you can understand how the layout made it easy for things to happen as they did. Then after the mining operators got to camp, the big mining syndicates began to send in their experts, and there also came a lot of strange and shrewd-looking fellows into camp, that we all put up for secret agents of these syndicates, men right next to the Syndicate, who would ferret out anything the experts overlooked and creep into the confidence of the mine owners to find out how much they paid for the stock and what they paid for the mine."

"This infirm kept the mine of the poker game at Buck's busy. It was their play to get hold of good prospects for a song and a drink, to they could shape them up a little, and then unload them on the syndicates."

"So the whole bunch of them was at it all day, showing the experts around the mine and keeping a keen eye on the mine for any pleasant mannered chap who might turn out to be a secret agent. I reckon the work must have got on their nerves, for they'd relax themselves with a sleep game down at Buck's every night, and thousands of dollars would change hands with a swiftness that made its everyday poker players dizzy."

"About this time I met a young fellow named Mason, who was a friend of mine. He was a graduate of the University of Michigan, where he lived, and had come to Orville Creek to get practical experience in the mine, and also to get a job, if possible, in some assay office, as he didn't have money enough to set up one for himself.

"He was a good-looking fellow, a drink of smoke, and took an interest in the gambling game, I had to admit, but he was a circumspect fellow, and this bunch of tough ones without getting his morals jangled, he kept at it."

"Next thing I heard the mining operators had taken him up and were showing him into every hole in the mountain, one of them was with them most of the time."

"He's a shrewd one, all right," said Maloney, a big operator from Deadwood, who had not met him after all day in the hills with Mason. "He knows his odds mighty little about mines, and doesn't want to buy any, but I'm mighty glad to have about his mind around so he can learn about it."

"Says he doesn't know anything about poker either, except that he used to play for coffee beans with his sisters in San Jose. When I told him we didn't play for money, he said, 'I'd like to play for chips, but I was glad to hear that as gambling was wicked. What do you think of that?'"

"But I guess I think on it and 'Prize' crowd, all right, and don't know one of the pair's men when I see him. Oh, no, and Maloney tipped me a wink that went over my head, but he told me he had made information that Fair and Mackay and the rest of the old Prison bandits had set up a saloon at Buck's mine, and I guess they had a man somewhere on the ground looking for prospects."

"Mason was one of those agents, and the slickest of them all, he Maloney said. In fact, he thought he was one of Fair's men, playing the innocent."

"A few nights later, Mason came to me with his doubts about over getting a foothold in Orville, and all that sort of talk that bored me for I hate a hypocrite, except in a poker game. Wanting to shake him, I strolled down to Buck's for a drink, but Mason followed along, asking advice at every step."

"Invited to Join the Game."

"When we got inside Maloney stuck his head around the partition and called us over to where his crowd was playing poker for all kinds of big stakes. While I was having my drink with him, Maloney said to Mason:

"Wouldn't you like to sit in the game a while, son?"

"I don't mind," replied Mason, "as long as you're not playing for money."

"Oh, no, son," replied Maloney, "we're just playing for chips. Maloney called to Buck's cashier, 'This is Mr. Mason, one of our kind of people. Bring him some whites, reds and blues, three hundred of each.'"

"Mason took his seat in that game, where a pair of aces was worth $500 any time, and I watched him deal the cards."

"I can't do it very well, he apologized, as he showed his cards to me around. 'I've never played except with my sisters.'"

"That's all the experience most of us have had," replied Maloney, wanting to show Mason he was on to him, and everybody smiled.

"Mason was certainly a great actor as a guileless youth, and as the play went on I saw he was an artist on many words and manners. He played like a school girl, but he was like a veteran card sharp."

"He would make the most astounding deals on a pair of deuces or threes, a pair straight face up on the table with the dealer, and then, miraculously, the very next hand, with a huge bet, that everybody had crowded in because they thought he had nothing on a pair full against threes and fours."

"Then those fellows began to get rattled, and in half an hour they didn't know which point of the compass they were headed for. I never saw a crowd knocked dizzy. And through it all Mason kept as calm and cool as though he was playing for coffee beans at home instead of being tangled up in the swiftest of mountain games."

"Cheer up, why, what did you say to him?"

"Orderly: 'Hopkins says I'm mortal bad.'"

"I am," says he.

"Hopkins says I, I don't think you'll get better."

"Yes," says he.

"Hopkins says I, you're going fast."

"Hopkins says I, I don't think you can stop me to heaven."

"Well, then, Hopkins says I, you'll go to the other place."

"I suppose so," says he.

"Hopkins says I, you ought to be very grateful as there's a place provided for you, and that you've got some here to go, and I think I'd card, and then a died."

From the Washington Post.

"I've known plenty of men who have played poker all their lives and never made a cent," said the Orville Creek man, as he set down the bottle and took up the glass, "but I never knew but one fellow who never gambled at all and yet made money at the game."

"That's a neat dwelling house," in Orville Creek's opinion, a prosperous guy, "thirty three years old, a fine fellow, and both of them, he got through his winning in a poker game, though he is now and always has been bitterly opposed to gambling in every form, especially poker, and will tell you that he never bet a cent on anything in his life—which is the truth."

"Some 10 years ago, when the miles of that district were opening up bigger and bigger every day, the camp began to attract the attention of the big mining operators in the older camps. Men from Butte and Deadwood and the Mogollon country began to drop in, looking for good prospects."

"With money, I think, they were, but they didn't look at the price in the ground showed for well."

"Of course, they had a touch of sporting blood in their makeup, being miners, and these fellows were always in their class, and couldn't find much amusement in the ordinary power games of the regular houses in the camp. They'd have gone to sleep over it. So Buck Nevada, who ran the Golden Palace saloon, fenced off a corner of his big poker room, with a partition for the special benefit of these high rollers, and as they didn't want to be bothered with backing the game, they made arrangements with Buck to have his cashier do the banking for them."

"Buck just instructed the cashier to let anyone at that table have all the chips he wanted. After each game the cashier would figure their winnings with the cashier, and he'd hand over the cash to them. The next morning the miners'd send around the cash to him."

"In explaining all this so you can understand how the layout made it easy for things to happen as they did. Then after the mining operators got to camp, the big mining syndicates began to send in their experts, and there also came a lot of strange and shrewd-looking fellows into camp, that we all put up for secret agents of these syndicates, men right next to the Syndicate, who would ferret out anything the experts overlooked and creep into the confidence of the mine owners to find out how much they paid for the stock and what they paid for the mine."

"This infirm kept the mine of the poker game at Buck's busy. It was their play to get hold of good prospects for a song and a drink, to they could shape them up a little, and then unload them on the syndicates."

"So the whole bunch of them was at it all day, showing the experts around the mine and keeping a keen eye on the mine for any pleasant mannered chap who might turn out to be a secret agent. I reckon the work must have got on their nerves, for they'd relax themselves with a sleep game down at Buck's every night, and thousands of dollars would change hands with a swiftness that made its everyday poker players dizzy."

"About this time I met a young fellow named Mason, who was a friend of mine. He was a graduate of the University of Michigan, where he lived, and had come to Orville Creek to get practical experience in the mine, and also to get a job, if possible, in some assay office, as he didn't have money enough to set up one for himself.

"He was a good-looking fellow, a drink of smoke, and took an interest in the gambling game, I had to admit, but he was a circumspect fellow, and this bunch of tough ones without getting his morals jangled, he kept at it."

"Next thing I heard the mining operators had taken him up and were showing him into every hole in the mountain, one of them was with them most of the time."

"He's a shrewd one, all right," said Maloney, a big operator from Deadwood, who had not met him after all day in the hills with Mason. "He knows his odds mighty little about mines, and doesn't want to buy any, but I'm mighty glad to have about his mind around so he can learn about it."

"Says he doesn't know anything about poker either, except that he used to play for coffee beans with his sisters in San Jose. When I told him we didn't play for money, he said, 'I'd like to play for chips, but I was glad to hear that as gambling was wicked. What do you think of that?'"

"But I guess I think on it and 'Prize' crowd, all right, and don't know one of the pair's men when I see him. Oh, no, and Maloney tipped me a wink that went over my head, but he told me he had made information that Fair and Mackay and the rest of the old Prison bandits had set up a saloon at Buck's mine, and I guess they had a man somewhere on the ground looking for prospects."

"Mason was one of those agents, and the slickest of them all, he Maloney said. In fact, he thought he was one of Fair's men, playing the innocent."

"A few nights later, Mason came to me with his doubts about over getting a foothold in Orville, and all that sort of talk that bored me for I hate a hypocrite, except in a poker game. Wanting to shake him, I strolled down to Buck's for a drink, but Mason followed along, asking advice at every step."

THE "DOPE" EVIL

WE DOUBT whether there are as many as one hundred people in Colorado Springs who realize the extent to which the illicit use of cocaine, morphine and other habit-forming drugs has become prevalent in recent years. And there is still less realization of the frightful effect of these drugs in producing crime, poverty and degeneracy.

A few days ago Jailor Birdsall was quoted as saying that "more than 75 per cent of the young men who land in the El Paso County jail are there because they use dope," and that at present 15 per cent of the prisoners in the jail are dope fiends. Some of them use cocaine, some morphine, and a few use both.

Last summer a prisoner in the Pueblo city jail, made desperate by the refusal of the physician to give him cocaine, tried to hang himself with a strip of canvas torn from his bunk. In recent years the police news from cities all over the country has contained a startling array of facts showing the remarkable increase in the use of these drugs and their influence as incentive to crime.

Cocaine is made only from coca leaves, which are imported from South America, so it is possible to obtain fairly accurate information as to the manufacture of the drug by an examination of import statistics. A report of the American Pharmaceutical Association says that in the five-year period from 1898 to 1903 the United States imported coca leaves to the value of $83,214, while in the period from 1903 to 1907 imports amounted to $1,616,690—more than nineteen times as much. An eminent medical authority declares that "cocaine was unknown until about twenty-five years ago, but its abuse has grown so common and extensive that it has already invaded all classes of society and found its way into the ranks of school children."

Government reports show that the total annual consumption of cocaine in this country is about 150,000 ounces, of which 130,000 ounces are used illicitly. In other words, 20,000 ounces a year is as much as is legitimately needed in medicine. There are 480 grains in an ounce, and a grain of cocaine is a dose, so it is a matter of simple arithmetic to calculate how many doses are consumed by the dope fiends.

A CURSE TO BODY AND SOUL

Of all drug habits the use of cocaine is the easiest to acquire and the hardest to cure, and its effect, morally and physically, is probably more disastrous than that of any other drug known. It is infinitely worse than alcohol, for the user of cocaine is, within a few weeks, or at most a few months, reduced to a condition of physical incapacity which unfits him for any kind of work, and at the same time he becomes a moral wreck. He will lie, steal or commit any crime or endure any degradation to obtain the drug, and while under its influence he is wholly irresponsible. Perhaps it is a redeeming feature that "coked" fiends seldom live more than five or six years after contracting the habit.

The most alarming aspect of this problem is the growth of the habit among children. A recent investigation in Philadelphia showed that literally hundreds of school children from fourteen to eighteen years of age were buying cocaine regularly from drug stores near the schools. Similar investigations have shown like condition in other cities, and there is the best of reason for believing that here in Colorado Springs cocaine is regularly sold in violation of law, much of it to children. The ease with which the habit is formed is well shown in this extract from a recent report:

"Dr. Hamilton, a woman bacteriologist, at Hull House, Chicago, made an investigation among boys and young men in the neighborhood and found that numbers of them were regular users of the drug. Dr. Hamilton found that the cocaine habit had spread through one group of seven boys. The youngest, Willie, was coming home from school one day when he met a negro who offered him a sniff of powder, saying it would make him feel good. Willie sniffed the powder and as he expressed it he felt like a butterfly. The negro told him what was left of the powder in a little tin box for fifteen or twenty cents, and told the boy that he would be around that evening every evening with more of the stuff. He also suggested that Willie inform his boy friends of the wonderful effect of this powder.

"Willie went back to the corner and bought more of the drug. He told his two brothers, Joseph and William, and his cousin, and they tried the powder. One by one four of their friends were initiated into the group of seven which formed. All seven became absolutely demoralized. They quit going to school, they stopped work, they stayed away from home all night, going on regular cocaine debauches and spending as much as $7 in a single day for the drug. When their money gave out they would pawn their clothes, they would steal, they would do anything to get more money to buy more cocaine. Through the earnest efforts of the Hull House people these seven boys were cured of the habit. Dr. Hamilton thinks a cure is possible for these boys, though rather doubtful for adults. Even so, the effects of their long indulgence in cocaine did them permanent injury. Their power of resistance was weakened and three of them died of tuberculosis. It is a question, too, whether the others have been quite sound mentally."

SALE OF DRUG CLERK AT THE SANTA FE IS A LOCAL PROBLEM

On June 5 last, a clerk at the Santa Fe drug store, conducted by Mrs. F. H. Martin at 302 East Pike's Peak Avenue, was arrested on the charge of selling cocaine to a minor. The arrest was the result of a complaint filed by the father of the schoolboy to whom the drug was alleged to have been sold. A few weeks later, on August 26, Mrs. Martin and another of her clerks were arrested on a second and similar charge. In this case also the complaint was made by the father of a boy for whom the drug was bought by another boy. These cases are now awaiting trial in the District Court. A statute passed last year makes the selling of cocaine and certain other drugs, except on prescription, punishable by a fine of from $200 to $350, or by imprisonment for not more than six months in the county jail, or by both fine or imprisonment.

Lack of space forbids a fuller recital of the local aspect of this problem. For the present it is enough to say that the situation is of such extreme seriousness as to demand the most energetic efforts of both authorities and private citizens to wipe out what is fast becoming an intolerable curse to the community. Information as to the extent of the cocaine evil in Colorado Springs is not difficult to obtain, and it is the business of good citizens to inform themselves and to back up the District Attorney and the police in a vigorous and effective campaign which will end only with stopping the illicit sale of the drug and putting the sellers in jail.

OPEN PARLIAMENT

A SUGGESTION TO THE CHARITABLE.

To the Editor of The Gazette:
There are always among us a few people who are more in need of aid, to tide over difficult positions, than any others, and I would earnestly entreat those with time and money at command to consider the best methods of reaching out a helping hand. We hear from time to time of generous, refined and well educated, probably with a sick member in the family, who are absolutely unable to make both ends meet; reluctant to accept charity or make their necessities known, yet in absolute need. Can not the old Woman's Exchange be revived? It helped in times past exactly this need. Mrs. Davidge, a daughter of Bishop Potter of New York, devoted herself to this work successfully.

Those who have worked in the field can give more practical details than I can, but I make the suggestion in the hope a more capable person than I am may take up the idea.

MRS. M. A. GASTIN.

Colorado Springs, Dec. 16.

A SOCIALISTIC GRIEVANCE.

To the Editor of The Gazette:

We often wonder why editors and newspaper men in general don't blow the bugles of patriotism and law and order in matters such as the Cherry mine disaster, in the Triangle shirt waist factory, where no less than 146 girls were burned to death. Why don't they identify press raise a howl about the recent Tennessee mine disaster where over 100 miners have lost their lives? Why don't you side with the thousands of widowed mothers and fatherless children of all our great industrial centers? Don't you think that the lives of workmen and women are as dear to their families, relatives and friends as the lives of our industrial magnates are to themselves?

Workmen are slaughtered by the thousands for the sake of profit and your great insurgent Republican and progressive Democratic leaders and newspapers stand by like donkeys in the pasture, barely noticing the crimes perpetrated upon the American workmen. Have the great modern House Greasers with their filthy pasties and outcarts the modern Lincolns, Garlands, Hillmans and Sumners so blind that they can't see anything else but the almighty dollar?

Needs slavery may have been repented with crime, but when you read nineteen hundred and one years after the crucifixion of the man who gave his life to save the world, that a missionary found nine persons in an underground kitchen in the city of New York, the father and two children, all with smallpox, the mother just recovering from her confinement, and no food, no heat and a notice to vacate the premises right quick. When you see men willing to work, compelled to leave father, mother, wife and children in order to join the grand army of hoboes searching for jobs all over the continent and to find none, and when many men go to work in dangerous occupations always with their lives in their hands, never certain of ever seeing their families at the end of the workday, can't you see something wrong in this social structure?

The working people engage occasionally in revolting crimes, but as Thomas Paine once remarked, "They learn the crime from the ruling class; they live under and retaliate the crimes they have been accustomed to behold."

If the masses would have the means of life insured and all the chances for good education they might indulge in philosophy, art and discovery as some of our well-to-do are now doing. As it is, it is a board with flippers in front of a newspaper office indicating the returns of a baseball football game, or a prize fight is the kind of education that's good enough for him, and the newspapers are not at all either, in handling him that kind of dope.

The labor unions have gained one thing—the labor shaker, known as labor leaders are members of the American Civic Federation and Militia of Christ, organizations that care for the masses of the people as much as a child care for a spanking. And he causes the public to object to such leaders, they are called strikers. If they would not be strikers they would not have heads off for the labor shakers that want a few more coppers for the union man and half the full product for all the workers. Witness Gompers and Mitchell and others orating at the American Civic Federation banquet calling their hearers that the A. C. F. is the strongest bulwark against Socialism.

Another phase of the McNamara affair was the strong desire on the part of individual union men that phase of justice be obtained by the quick trial in the end so many have little concern about justice handed out by either jury or court, that the "mob" as barbarous and criminal as it might be, is in the end nearly as right as the average court or jury. The hoarse cry of an ignorant mob that burns or hangs its victim differs not one iota from the well educated cry emanating from the pulpit, platform or editorial room clamoring for the life of the culprit. In the end they are all bolted in the pot, broaching the same atmosphere, reared under the same system, and applying to the same goal—revenge.

In conclusion let me say the teaching of brotherhood between capital and labor, and brotherhood proving disastrous to the wage-worker in his struggle for existence, witness the clubs, militia, bullpens and other tools being used against a brother worker when he asks for a little more of his product from dear and sweet brother capital.

THE DAILY CHIT-CHAT

BY RUTH CAMERON

Her finely touched spirit had still its fine issues, although they were not widely visible. Her full nature, like that river of which Alexander broke the strength, spent itself in channels which had no great name on the earth. But the effect of her being on those around her was incalculably diffusive for the growing good of the world is partly dependent on unhistoric acts, and that things are not so ill with you and me as they might have been, is half owing to the number who faithfully lived a hidden life and rest in unvisited tombs.

—George Eliot.

How often we are all in danger of forgetting that just living is a fine art and that success in it brings results as great and wonderful as success in any fine art.

One man writes a book and another "makes a family happier by his presence." Who shall say which has done the greater thing, which could have less easily been spared by the world?

I heard one woman admiring and envying another, because she is able to write beautiful poetry, and thus help and inspire many people.

The first woman is a successful wife and mother. Many people love her and she is necessary to many people's happiness. How can she possibly dare to belittle her part in the world's work?

We carry on our worship of popularity with a strange, unjustifiable, sense of shame, while we think it a matter of course to praise brains. And yet, to have a personality which inspires love wherever it is known, is surely as great a thing as to have a clever mind.

But you, the writer of the beautiful poem, the artist, who paints a fine picture, the great teacher, who many more lives than those whose names are known in the home, and the small home circle. Granted, but do not forget to compare also the depth of this influence. How often does a picture, however wonderful, a poem, however inspired, a teaching, however splendid, really affect a life as deeply and powerfully as some other life intimately connected with it does?

Surely it is logical that the value of any influence is equal to the product of its depth and breadth. And if the breadth of the conspicuous kind of influence is vastly greater, its depth is vastly less. If the breadth of the humble kind of influence is infinitely less, its depth is infinitely greater so that the product in either case is much the same.

To be lovable is as great a gift as the power to write.

To master the fine art of living, is as great a triumph as to paint a wonderful picture.

To be necessary to the happiness of those about you is a great accomplishment as to be necessary to some great undertaking.

If there is power in you, if you have "a finely touched" spirit, never fear that repressive situation shall prevent it from great results.

That's no more possible than for a river to stop flowing. It may flow like that river of which Alexander broke the strength, in channels which have no great name on earth, but it must and will flow, and since such energy is undying, flow on forever.

Ruth Cameron

SCRIPTURE

DEUTERONOMY, 28:1-12.

And it shall come to pass, if thou shalt hearken diligently unto the voice of the Lord thy God, to observe and to do all his commandments which I command thee this day, that the Lord thy God will set thee on high above all nations of the earth: And all these blessings shall come on thee, and overtake thee, if thou shalt hearken unto the voice of the Lord thy God.

Blessed shalt thou be in the city, and blessed shalt thou be in the field. Blessed shalt thou be in the fruit of thy body, and the fruit of thy ground, and the fruit of thy cattle, the increase of thy vine, and the increase of thy olive.

Blessed shalt thou be in all that thou doest. Blessed shalt thou be when thou comest in, and blessed shalt thou be when thou goest out. The Lord shall cause thine enemies that rise up against thee to be smitten before thee, they shall come out against thee one way, and flee before thee seven ways.

The Lord shall command the blessing upon thee in thy storehouses, and in all that thou settest thine hand unto; and he shall bless thee in the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee.

The Lord shall establish thee an holy people unto himself, as he hath sworn unto thee, if thou shalt keep the commandments of the Lord thy God, and walk in his ways.

And the people of the earth shall see that thou art called by the name of the Lord; and they shall be afraid of thee.

And the Lord shall make thee plenteous in goods, in the fruit of thy body, and in the fruit of thy cattle, and in the fruit of thy ground, in the land which the Lord swore unto thy fathers to give thee.

The Lord shall open unto thee his good treasure, the heaven to give the rain unto thy land in his season, and to bless all the work of thine hand; and thou shalt lend unto many nations, and thou shalt not borrow.

PRESIDENTS AND JUDGES.

From Life.

It is interesting to compare this from President Taft:

"I love judges and I love courts. They are my ideals on earth that typify what we shall meet afterward in heaven under a just God."

With this from President Lincoln:

Jefferson said: "Judges are as honest as other men, but not more so," and I agree with Jefferson.

The Great Conflict

A Half Century Ago Today

DECEMBER 17, 1861

A spirited encounter between Colonel William Sherman and General Robert E. Lee's troops, supported by two regiments of Confederate infantry, resulted in no final advantage to either side. Colonel William was attacked by the Texas Rangers of the south side of Green River, opposite Monticello, Ky. His soldiers, without three fierce assaults of cavalry, in the third advance Colonel Terry was killed. The Confederate infantry, coming up in support of Colonel Terry would have been in serious trouble if reinforcements had not arrived. Each combatant ultimately withdrew.

A Union expedition under General Pope in Missouri scattered a Confederate camp near Shawnee, Mo. The Confederates were reported a 200 strong, (one hundred and fifty prisoners were taken, and a wagon train of 70 wagons, loaded with provisions for General Price's Confederate army. A squadron of the First New Jersey cavalry, belonging to General Heintzelman's division, under command of Captain Skellmire, made a reconnaissance into Virginia. A portion of the squadron, commanded by Lieutenant Janville, got into trouble with a band of Confederates whom they encountered near the Bone mills on the Orange & Alexandria railroad. Lieutenant Janville was badly wounded, being shot in six places.

Twenty-eight Union soldiers, who attended a corn husking when they were on a reconnaissance, were surprised and captured by Captain Wilcox and 75 Confederates.

The intelligent tone of the British press in the Trent affair created tremendous excitement throughout the United States and the Confederacy. The Confederate states saw hope of obtaining an ally in England. (Copyright, 1911, by W. G. Chapman.)

Disease and Its Cure

By EDDY WOLFF.

CARE OF THE TEETH

Dentists, like all physicians, prefer to prevent disease than to cure it. It will prove a profitable outlay to pay some competent dentist for his service in regard to the care and preservation of the teeth, rather than to wait until repair work is needed. In the matter of teeth, an ounce of prevention is worth several tons of cure.

The teeth are composed of three layers of substance. The inner layer is a soft, brittle honeycomb, which furnishes to the other layers the food brought to it by the blood.

The second layer is a hard and bony substance, and forms the main body of the tooth.

The outer layer is the enamel, which protects the inner layers from acids and from the hurt that would result from biting on hard substances.

Human teeth are subject to some people seldom or never clean their teeth and yet have very little trouble with them. Others give their teeth much attention and still suffer much "shot far less" than if they neglected the precaution of cleaning them.

Particles of food often remain between the teeth. The warmth and moisture of the mouth favor decay. Decay liberates acids which quickly dissolve the enamel of the teeth. This outer protection, once pierced, it is only a short time before the sensitive and inner portion of the tooth is attacked.

The inner portions of the teeth decay with great rapidity, as they are not formed with a view to resisting acids. When a break in the enamel or a cavity in the tooth is discovered, it is safer and far less painful to have it filled at once.

Brushing the teeth well after each meal will serve to remove the remaining bits of food, which will otherwise decay in the mouth. Using a good dentifrice will neutralize the acids that have formed and will have a tendency to prevent the formation of more acids.

Proxids of hydrogen is a good mouth wash. Very nearly all of the better known tooth preparations are good. Powders are best. Liquids are good, and people with exceptionally weak teeth had better avoid pastes.

But some cleaning material should be used by everyone.

WHEN J. PIERPONT DROPPED THE PLATE

J. Pierpont dropped in church today and, falling to the floor, spilled the contents of the collection plate, which was piled high with money. New York Dispatch.

On Wall street where J. Pierpont plays no matter how the busy ways beset with obstacles may be. Against him headless men may lurk. And strangers into him may jostle. But on the coin he keeps his "hoof."

It is different when he's in church. J. Pierpont has dined with kings and queens.

And kept his group upon his wad. He never bows his plate of beams. When on his feet the rough have fire.

For coin that Mr. Morgan drops. On week days it were vain to search. The long green in his fingers stops. It's different when he's in church.

From Monday unto Saturday. He watches every step he takes. No obstacles upon his way. The money from his pocket shakes. On Sunday it is different, though. He's not so steady in his gait.

A little coin he brought him down. And spilled the shekels from the plate.

The church is not the place to smile. Or laughter to be heard within. Men should be reverent all the while. The sacred house of God they're in. And yet in just a chuckle lay.

Two angels, I believe, would join And laugh the same as you and I. To see J. Pierpont dropping coin. —Detroit Free Press.

IN THE EARLY DAYS

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY DECEMBER 17, 1881

The new city jail in the basement of the engine house was completed and city prisoners could be taken care of there instead of at the county jail.

Sergeant J. E. O'Keefe, for many years connected with the signal station on the summit of Pikes Peak, left for Washington to receive his discharge.

Major Olla came in from his ranch at Prairie Dog, Wallowa. He expected to remain in town until after Christmas, or anyway, until he could get his wagon painted.

The officers of the Bandora mine which was near Silverton received at their headquarters here some very fine specimens of ore containing large amounts of wire silver.

President Slocum of Colorado college was confined to his house by an attack of the grippe.

The Y. M. C. A. was booming. New applications for membership were being received nearly every day.

It was estimated that there were 2,500 people in the Grinnell Creek district, with more coming all the time.

Girls Who Go to Balls Alone

(Copyrighted, 1911, by Laura Jean Libbey.)

I have always deplored the fact that the majority of working girls have so few opportunities of meeting marriageable men. At the same time, I cannot agree with some who would take the initiative by going to places of amusement alone, with the hope that they might meet young men there who would fall in love with them.

A letter from "Two Little Girls" is in part as follows: "Dear Miss Libbey: Will you please settle an argument in which several of us girls, who are your daily readers, are much interested. We are all employed in a department store. Unfortunately, the goods we sell never bring a man to our counters, we have no opportunity of meeting them. So we have concluded that the only way is to go to balls, where they are. Single fellows would be there, we are sure. They might come home with us, and perhaps this would result in a proposal. If we sit in our homes we are sure to meet no one."

The above letter voices the sentiment of thousands of employed girls, therefore it required more than ordinary consideration.

While it is natural for young girls to like to go to bright places of amusement, I cannot encourage any girl to attend a public ball with only a girl or two companions, instead of a male escort.

A girl scarcely realizes that night has lengthened into the "two a.m. hours," when she makes up her mind to tear herself away from the lights and the music. It is then that the seriousness of the situation must force itself upon the mind of a girl as she and her companion face the dangers of going home through the city streets.

No self-respecting girl should face such a situation for pleasure's sake. A case of life or death alone should warrant it or some urgent other necessity. As to going for the sole purpose that some young man she met there might fall in love with her and escort her home to her parents' home.

If a girl hasn't a proper escort to take her to a ball she shouldn't go at all. Means look for one there to escort her home. What opinions could a young man form of such a girl? She is the last one, probably, whom he would consider as one whom he would care to make his wife. Therefore, I say, girls, trust no such hazardous manner as that to win a good husband.

If a girl is intent upon going to such a place surely she or her friends have some male relative who would be pressed into service of escorting her. Should he know any nice young man there to introduce her or her girl friends to well and good.

If you will take my advice you will think better of going with your girl friends to a public ball. There are many nice ways in which a girl might "do Cupid," but certainly this is not one of them.

There is no possession which a girl has that is as valuable as her reputation. Little wonder it is ruthlessly destroyed when its owner causes it to be brought in contact with such dangers instead of safeguarding it.

ANSWERS

WANTS TO BE POPULAR. "Dear Miss Libbey: I am not what you would call good looking. I am never loud or boisterous in the presence of my men friends, yet they always prefer my girl charms. I should like to know what to do."

E. G. E. You probably are not sympathetic enough. Are you interested in other people? Try to be. Read books and think about them. See good plays and try to talk entertainingly. Cultivate the art of being a good listener too. These are perhaps the first principles of popularity.

Speaking generally, China has adopted the British railway gauge, that is, four feet eight and one-half inches, but she is apparently not insisting upon this. The Chentai line in Yunnan has used the meter gauge, and the Kwangsi authorities appear to have determined to break away from what is supposed to be the standard and have either the meter or narrow gauge instead. The eventual conversion of these lines will be an expensive business, and China has no money to waste.

THE Colorado Springs Musical club presented a notably fine program last Monday afternoon during one of the recitals and the large audience testified to the general interest being taken in the organization this season. The opening number, Moszkowski's "Miment Musicales," was admirably played by Miss Elshpan. The unique song cycle, "A Lover of Damascus" - Woodford-Flinders, as interpreted by Mrs. John Speed Tucker, with Mrs. J. Dawson Hawkins at the piano, proved a popular number, also, the Beethoven "Sonata, opus 20," for violin and piano played by Mrs. George M. Howe and Mrs. Frederick A. Faust. The recitative and song, "Sestina," by John S. Hart, sung by Mr. Vere Stiles Richards, tenor, with Miss Evelyn Lennox at the piano, well illustrated Dr. Richards' ability in rendering orchestral music.

The club orchestra, under the capable leadership of Mr. M. O. Barnes, has already proven a great accession to the musical atmosphere and the numbers played at this recital aroused the audience to great enthusiasm. The selections were: (A) "Overture to Rosamunde," by Schubert; (B) "Norturmo," by Liszt; (C) "Night's Dream," Mendelssohn; (d) "La Fete de Seville," Marchetti.

An announcement was made that an American Indian, "Music Talk," would be given by the composer-pianist, Charles Wakefield Cadman, assisted by Gertrude Hassler, contralto, tomorrow evening, December 18, in the First M. E. church, complimentary to the members of the club upon presentation of their membership card at the door. Those not members will be admitted for a small guest fee.

Tonight was served after the program

With Mrs. Henry Howard Brown and Mrs. Josephine Trott presiding at the table. Those assisting in serving were Mrs. Daniel Thibault, Mrs. Howard C. Hill, Miss Leitch, Miss Daisy Thompson and the Misses Ruth and Bessie Manning.

Washington Improvement League.

The "housewarming" reception of the Washington Improvement League held Thursday afternoon in the new cottage building, was attended by 125 patrons and friends of the school, and was a most enjoyable occasion. Superintendent Charles M. Cole made interesting introductory remarks, and then Mr. L. J. Newsome gave an excellent talk on "Father and Son." Mrs. William W. Warner and Mr. Cecil Rogers sang solos, and some of the ladies of the league served light refreshments.

A CURE FOR THE BLUES

Are dull and dark and gray?
Dejected, long-faced just because?
The rain beads down today?
Why, bless your soul, it doesn't help
To let the tears drip down
Just wipe your eyes and look around
For some good work to do.

There's nothing bleak when you are blue
Like helping set things right,
And on the lips the darkness flies
With sweetness and with light.
And when you're feeling out of sorts
The very best plan
Is to find out what others want
And help them all you can.

So look around and study up
Some helpful thing to do,
And find that "choosing others" three
Will brighten life for you.
Look up the real misfortunes
And ease their griefs and pains,
And while you feel you're doing good
You'll never know it rains!

CROWING OLD YOUNG

"Do You Want to Stay Young?" is the title of an article in the July 1914 Hampton's written by Dr. Woods Lloyd, and the author most authoritatively declares that the only pains and penalties of old age that are to be dreaded are those brought upon by our own individual misfortunes or our follies. Then he declares:

"There is no way of preventing old age itself, save by the rather heroic remedy of dying early—which is scarcely worth while for this purpose alone. It is perfectly possible, however, to prevent most of the limitations and grippings which alone make old age to be dreaded by the exercise of our intelligence and our determination. Many, if not most, of the changes we associate with age, which we have in mind when we think of growing old, which in our pompous, technical terminology we allude to as senile degenerations, are the result of infectious diseases and bad hygienic habits."

For instance, remote at first glance as the connection may seem, binding together in one link our first and our second childhood, many of the disabilities of old age are the results of those lightly regarded and almost fortune or the good management to old results. Influenza, pneumonia, phoid fever, bug infections, and related diseases, you will have avoided the quarters of your risks of stiffened ribs and swollen joints in your declining years—to say nothing of parais, heart disease, Bright's disease, beriosis of the liver, and arteriosclerosis in adult life and middle age.

Of course, as yet it is not within human power to avoid all or even a majority of these maladies and misfortunes, but it is becoming more and more nearly so every day. The fewer you have of them, the better your chances for escaping these later clappings and degenerations. Every infectious disease that you can cross your vital slate means five more chances on the scale of one hundred for a happy and comfortable old age.

This is especially true of those families whose avoidance is within power of everyone—the so-called nervous diseases. An old man's science may not worry him much, nature has other methods of even up that score.

On the other hand, all the so-called senile changes may be produced artificially premature period, and instead life are so produced with painful frequency—by either underexercising at an early age, or by confinement in foul air without exercise. The most potent and common cause of old age, in fact, is the thoughtful combination of all three of these degrading influences which have been exalted by religion into a matter of grace under the title of "poverty." If you want to live to a good and comfortable old age don't be poor!

Even the so-called "dying" of the old man senses the failure of his vitality long before it is evident. It is significant that nine times out of ten, to all intents of childhood. The failure of his hearing is due to successive attacks of uncurd or untreated colds, which spread from his throat up to his Eustachian tube to the drum and the bones of his middle ear; the dimming of his eyesight is due to that decay of the vitality of the center of the crystalline lens which we call cataract; a decay caused by the infection-stages and over-work and underfeeding of his eyes.

LEADERS OF BOY SCOUTS

OPPOSED TO LONG H

Two boys who say they are Scouts of America have started a hike from Boston to San Francisco. Such hikes are not approved by the leaders of the Boy Scouts of America. While the leaders could not prevent the boys from calling themselves Scouts of America, they announce, however, that they are thoroughly opposed to putting any boy through trying temptations and experiences which are incident to a trip of this character.

Concerning the hike of the James E. West, executive secretary of the Boy Scouts of America, says: "I am distinctly disapproved of the plan. I did all we could to prevent them from calling themselves Boy Scouts. It was practically impossible because the numerous irresponsible people have attempted to organize groups of Scouts without the sanction of this office. I am sure that we are in some way to let it be understood in every city through which the young men are to pass that they unjustly reflecting upon the aims and purposes of the Scout movement. We are doing all we can to keep the boys closely identified with some local institution, and are insisting upon efficient, close personal supervision of details by men of unquestionable character in all of our activities and undertakings. We are cautioned, if we are not actually formed as to the age of these young men they are not eligible to themselves Boy Scouts under the circumstances, and in so far as they represent themselves as connected with the Boy Scouts of America, their impostors and should be so treated.
